Fritz Kuhn Faces Maximum Penalty Of 30 Years
MASKS FEELINGS

Convicted of Grand Larceny, Forgery After 8-Hour Deliberation

New York—(AP)—Fritz Kuhn, portly leader of the German-American Bund, convicted of stealing $1,217 in bund funds and falsifying bund records, will face a maximum of 30 years' imprisonment when he comes up for sentencing Dec. 5.

He merely blinked his bespectacled eyes and said nothing at all last night when a jury of businessmen after deliberating 8 hours and 30 minutes, found him guilty on all five counts of grand larceny and forgery which had been left to its decision. He showed no emotion as he was led across the Bridge of Sighs into musty tombs prison.

Judge James G. Wallace gave Kuhn's attorney, Peter L. F. Sabatino, permission to postpone until the day of sentencing any motions he might care to make.

Kuhn, who was born in Germany and became a naturalized American citizen, had based his defense on the "leadership principle"—that he had the right to spend bund funds as he saw fit.

Charge To Jury

The judge, in his 2-hour-and-2-minute charge to the jury, emphasized (1) that "You can't convict this man for his social, political, or economic views, nor can you convict him to get rid of him, for that would be a threat to civil liberties," and (2) that "This man is not on trial because he is an undesirable and unpopular citizen, or because he may foster ideas obnoxious to most of our citizens."

Specifically, Kuhn was found guilty of spending $717 in bund funds wrongfully to move the furniture of Mrs. Florence Camp, his erstwhile "golden angel," from Los Angeles to Cleveland and New York and of taking $500 which he claimed he paid to James D. C. Murray, an attorney, for legal services to the bund.

The original indictment against Kuhn charged thefts of more than $14,000, but counts dealing with more than $3,000 were eliminated before the trial began, and all the remaining counts, except five were dismissed after an accountant for Detroit Attorney Thomas E. Dewey admitted errors in fixing the amount.

Mrs. Roosevelt Attends Hearing

I Have Just Come to Listen, First Lady Says

Washington—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt showed up unexpectedly today at the Dies committee hearing.

Shortly before she arrived acting Chairman Starnes (D-Ala.) told newsmen:

"If she does come I'll invite her to take the witness stand and testify."

The first lady said at a press conference earlier this week that she would be willing to take the committee witness stand if she had any information the committee wanted.

Mrs. Roosevelt entered the hearing room at 11:30 a. m. (10:30 a. m. CST) and started to take a seat near the door. Acting Chairman Starnes stood up immediately and said he noticed the presence of the first lady of the land and asked her whether she would like to take a place at the committee table.

"I have just come to listen," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Starnes suggested that she might want to listen from the committee table.

Mrs. Roosevelt, as she joined a front row line of youth congress officials, replied:

"I think I would hear better here, wouldn't I?"

Circuit Judge John J. Gregory, died in a Milwaukee hotel last night. He had been in failing health for some time. Judge Gregory succumbed two days before his sixty-seventh birthday.

Illness Is Fatal To Judge Gregory, 66, at Milwaukee

Veteran Jurist Had Been In Failing Health For Some Time

Milwaukee—(AP)—Circuit Judge John J. Gregory, who served on the civil and circuit court bench here since 1910, died at his Astor hotel residence last night two days before his sixty-seventh birthday.

The veteran jurist had been in failing health for some time and for more than a week had been unable to appear in his chambers.

He was elected to the civil bench when it was created in 1910, elected a circuit judge in 1915, and re-elected in 1921, 1927, 1933 and 1939. Judge Gregory established the conciliation branch of the circuit bench here in 1932 and was its first judge.

Perhaps one of his best known decisions was in connection with the Simplex Shoe company case in 1933 when he granted the A. F. of L. union an injunction against purported company obstruction of employee rights to organize and bargain collectively—a decision in which he was upheld by the state supreme court.

Judge Gregory, a native Milwaukeean, was the son of George K. and Mary O'Halloran Gregory. His father was a city engineer at Milwaukee and La Crosse, and also became a justice of the peace and a member of the state legislature.

Survivors include three brothers and three sisters.

CAA Balks Non-Stop Flight Planned by Congressman's Son

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—The civil aeronautics authority apparently had ended Pat John's hope of a non-stop transcontinental flight by refusing to renew the license of his plane.

The son of the Wisconsin congressman, J. L. Johns, had a 60-day temporary license for a plane with a total weight of 1,300 pounds.

The contemplated flight, aviation experts said, would have entailed the carrying of extra gasoline to boost the weight to around 2,000 pounds.

Johns said he would seek a higher rating which would give him permission to fly a heavier plane.

New State Laws Being Distributed in Books

Sheboygan—(AP)—C. E. Broughton, editor of the Sheboygan Press, official state newspaper, announced that the laws enacted by the 1939 legislature were being distributed in book form today. The books contain 215 pages, with index, including the three measures which were vetoed in part by Governor Heil.

State Motor Vehicle Division Head Lays Off 25 More Workers To Make Total Reduction of 83

Madison—(AP)—George W. Rickeman, director of the motor vehicle division, has announced dismissal of 25 employees, effective Friday, bringing the total reduction of personnel in his new department to 83.

The staff cuts, Rickeman said, were necessary under a $250,000 reduction in his biennial operating budget, since the allotment was cut from $1,150,000 to $900,000 following adoption of a reorganization bill by the 1939 legislature.

Fifty-eight division workers were dropped from the payroll last week.

The 25 now affected have been employed in the public service commission's motor transportation division, which will come under Rickeman's jurisdiction Friday. He said about 66 of the bookkeepers, accountants, stenographers, filing clerks and field men in the office would be retained.

Rickeman disclosed that 10 of the 32 motor vehicle inspectors transferred from the public service commission would be laid off next week.

He estimated the average salary of the 25 now being dismissed was $1,500 a year, effecting a saving of $37,500. He previously estimated the lay off of 58 employees last week would save $73,000 a year.

Rickeman said additional savings would result from changes of technical procedures of the department.

August Frey, director of the departmental research bureau, has said a general economy program ultimately would result in dismissal of from 1,500 to 2,000 state employees, and in estimated savings of $2,000,000 for the biennium.

Rickeman asserted that all dismissals were based on civil service rules, "disregarding the fact that some of the most efficient and energetic employees must be dropped."

"It is felt that the departments to be consolidated under the motor vehicle department were overmanned and costing the taxpayers of Wisconsin more than necessary," he said, "and that the department, when fully organized, will be able to give efficient service with a reduction of approximately 100 people."

Pittman Thinks Question Of Severing Ties May Be Raised

SCORES RED MOVES

Terms Actions Not in Accord With Litvinoff Peace Doctrine

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today it was "quite obvious that soviet Russia wants to dominate Finland" and termed Finland's attitude in the negotiations with Moscow from the outset "unprovocative."

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Pittman (D-Neb.) of the senate foreign relations committee indicated today that congress might be asked to pass on the question of severing diplomatic relations with Russia.

Making it plain that he was speaking as an individual legislator and not for the executive branch, he criticized severely what he said had been a recent turn in Russian foreign policy away from the peace doctrine advocated by Maxim Litvinoff, former foreign minister.

Pittman's views were made public after Premier Molotov of Russia, in a broadcast announcing severance of soviet relations with Finland, had indicated rejection of this government's offer of its "good offices" to help bring about a peaceful settlement. A short time later, Russia invaded Finland.

The United States' influence had been thrown anew behind the idea of a peaceful solution late yesterday, when Secretary of State Hull made public a statement saying this government was watching the dispute with serious concern and with regret to see the present European war extended to new fields.

"Without in any way becoming involved in the merits of the dispute and limiting its interest to the solution of the dispute by peaceful processes only," Hull continued, "This government would, if agreeable to both parties, gladly extend its good offices."

Stocks Are Steady After Early Losses On N. Y. Exchange

New York—(AP)—Stocks steadied in today's market after early setbacks of fractions to around a point for leaders.

Dealings, lively at the start, soon slackened appreciably, and, near the second hour, the recent slow going pace was resumed. Initial declines were reduced or cancelled.

Outbreak of actual war between Finland and Russia served to dampen bullish ardor somewhat, brokers said.

At the same time, the business and industrial picture at home remained sufficiently bright to discourage heavy offerings, it was suggested.

Foreign dollar bonds weakened. Commodities were mixed. European securities generally were depressed.

Oslo, Norway—(AP)—Rumors circulated here today without confirmation that soviet Russia is demanding three naval bases on Norway's northern coast.

Has Narrow Escape When Clothes Get Caught in Buzz Saw

Scotts Neb.—(AP)—Wells Harshberger, farm worker, gave thanks today that he escaped almost certain death in an accident reminiscent of scenes in old motion picture serials.

His clothing caught in a buzz saw. He struggled desperately. Part of his clothing was torn off, but he was drawn steadily toward the whirling blade.

The saw snipped through his cap and shirt.

Just as the blade grazed his forehead some of the torn clothing was wadded around the saw shaft and stopped it.

Harshberger escaped with a bruised arm.

Daladier Request For Extension of Powers Is Denied

Chamber of Deputies Army Committee Votes Down Program

Paris—(AP)—The chamber of deputies army committee today compelled Premier Daladier to redraft his measure for extending the government's wartime powers and finally approved the altered version.

Paris—(AP)—The chamber of deputies army committee today voted down Premier Daladier's program for war time decree powers in the form in which it was first presented to parliament.

The firm-jawed premier, however, told the committee flatly that he refused to accept any modification of his project. Efforts were begun immediately to work out a compromise.

The premier encountered this obstacle soon after parliament had convened in special session, the purpose of which was to extend the decree powers of the government and pass on the 1940 budget.

Daladier asked for extension of his powers in order to "win the war."

The measure introduced would extend indefinitely the "full powers" expiring today.

All decrees adopted by the council of ministers, however, would be subject to parliamentary approval within one month after being adopted.

The committee's vote was 13 to 9 against the premier's measure in its present form, with five abstentions.

Members of the committee said, however, that a modified project for decree powers would have little difficulty in obtaining a majority.

Feel U. S. Offer to Mediate Dispute to Prove Futile Move

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull began a conference on the outbreak of the Russo-Finnish war today immediately upon the chief executive's arrival in the capital from Warm Springs, Ga.

Hull, whose last-minute efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the dispute between the soviet union and the small Baltic nation, appeared grave as he met the president at Union station.

Almost simultaneously with the president's arrival, it became known that a Russian official had advised this government that he saw no need for it to use its good offices for a peaceful solution of the dispute.

Finland, on the other hand, advised that it would welcome the exercise of good offices, it was reported to the state department by H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, American minister to Finland.

Moscow—(AP)—The United States delivered today to the soviet Russian government an offer of its services to mediate differences between Russia and Finland.

The offer was delivered as Russian troops invaded Finland and soviet war planes bombed the outskirts of Helsinki.

Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs Vladimir Potemkin accepted the offer without comment, and the feeling here was that the move would prove futile.

In the absence of United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt, the United States mediation offer was conveyed to Potemkin by Walter Thurston, embassy counselor, acting on instructions from Washington.

Steinhardt was expected to arrive here by plane today from Stockholm, where he has been undergoing dental treatment.

Embassy officials said they had experienced difficulty in efforts to make an appointment with Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, this being a "free day" in the soviet.

In connection with the United States mediation offer, the second secretary of the American embassy, N. B. Chipman, called at the Finnish legation.

Children of City, Vicinity To Display Floats in First Christmas Parade Tomorrow

Youngsters of Appleton and vicinity will have an opportunity to display their originality and ingenuity in the city's first Christmas parade at 9:15 tomorrow morning on College avenue.

Sponsored by the retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, the parade will mark the opening of the Christmas month. December, and introduce Santa Claus to hundreds of admiring children. Santa Claus will lead the parade, which will start at the corner of State street and College avenue and move east on the avenue to Oneida street, then turn south to the public library.

Although many children have sent in entry blanks for the parade, the committee pointed out yesterday that youngsters may participate merely by reporting at the assembling place, S. State street, between College avenue and Lawrence street, at 9 o'clock in the morning. The committee will award 25 theater tickets to each of the first 25 youngsters who submitted their entry blanks.

Judges for the parade will be Alex O. Benz, president of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. L. M. Schneider, president of the Appleton Women's club, and Frank Wilson, commander of the Oneida Johnston post of the American Legion.

The judges will inspect the floats and costumes as the parade moves along the avenue. Three cash prizes of $10, $5 and $3 are being offered by the retailers.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., will give Santa Claus his official greeting in front of the library when the parade ends. Santa will set up his "office" in the second floor of the library and will make frequent public appearances in the city between now and Christmas.

Red Fleet Occupies Finnish Island; Frontier Bombarded

Call Session of Finn Parliament for Vote Of Confidence; Soviet Troops Are Crossing Border

Helsinki—(AP)—Soviet Russian troops, warship and bombing planes launched an invasion of Finland early today. Within a few hours red army forces had pushed across the Finnish border on the Karelian isthmus north of Leningrad, warplanes had twice bombed Helsinki, the capital, and set the port of Viipuri (Viborg) in flames, and warships had begun seizing Finnish islands in the gulf of Finland.

(An exchange telegraph dispatch from Helsinki said that Finland had declared war on Russia following the invasion.)

Finnish anti-aircraft batteries fought back at the invading bombing planes, which directed their first attack on the capital upon the Malm airport on the outskirts. Later bombs fell in the heart of the city.

Viipuri, 65 miles from the soviet border, was attacked by warships as well as bombing planes. Sections of the port were in flames.

Foreign Minister Elias Erko declared the Russian attack was "the purest aggression imaginable."

"As the reason for the attack," he said, "the pretext was used that we invaded Russian territory and our troops threatened Leningrad. We haven't done anything of the kind."

The triple attack came less than a day after Russia broke off diplomatic relations with Finland, less than two days after she had, unilaterally denounced the Finnish-Russian nonaggression pact, less than two months after she had first made territorial demands upon her little neighbor.

Finland had refused to yield to Russia, as Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania had before her.

The diet, Finland's one-chamber parliament, was called for a session at 9 p. m. (noon C. S. T.) to receive a statement from Foreign Minister Elias Erko and to vote confidence in the government.

Officials said the session would show the unity of the nation in its gravest crisis in answer to Russian charges that the government does not have the support of its people.

Anti-aircraft batteries engaged in several battles with Russian fliers after invading warplanes had bombed the Malm airport outside the Finnish capital.

The invasion began early today. Incendiary bombs dropped on Ensoe set fire to several buildings, including a hospital which was destroyed. Casualties were not immediately determined.

The Russian fleet, after taking Seiskari, was believed to be heading toward other Finnish islands in the gulf of Finland. Seiskari is near the narrow neck of the gulf, just west of Kronstadt, port of Leningrad, Russia's second city.

The government has taken no step as yet regarding the removal of itself or civilians from Helsinki. The capital is regarded as strongly fortified against naval attack.

Preliminary orders to the public have been drawn, however, and, as a precaution, some government papers were burned in the basement of the capital.

Viborg, on the northern shore of the gulf of Finland, apparently was heavily bombed from the sea.

Red army troops began crossing the Karelian frontier, north of Leningrad, under protective soviet artillery fire along the whole length of the border.

Soviet warplanes swooped over Helsinki and dropped five bombs on the Malm airport on the outskirts of the city. Anti-aircraft batteries replied vigorously.

Sirens screamed the first air raid alarm at 9:20 a. m. (1:20 a. m. C. S. T.) as a foreign office spokesman announced, "It has started. The war is on."

Air defense guards quickly and calmly took their stations in the highest buildings and scanned the horizon with binoculars, toured the streets helping civilians find air raid shelters or manned fire prevention posts.

No bombs were dropped in Helsinki itself but a small island in the Finnish capital's harbor was bombed.

Traffic Halted

Street cars, automobiles, trains and all other traffic was halted as soon as the air raid warnings sounded.

The invaders also bombed Viborg and the Finnish industrial city of Ensoe.

Their troops attacked north of Lake Ladoga and cut off Suojarvi, a small portion of Finnish territory extending into Russia and a strategic point in the Finnish defense plan.

They also cut off the so-called fishermen's peninsula near the Arctic ocean harbor of Petsamo.

After the first air raid, soviet planes dropped handbills in Finnish saying:

"You know we have food. You know we have bread. Why hunger?"

All barracks were alive with calm activity.

Calm also was the keynote of Turn to page 2 col. 1.

England's Blockade of Nazi Exports Is Aimed at Keeping Germany From Obtaining Cash

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York.—The gravity of Germany's sea-mine and U-boat assault on British shipping is clearly reflected in England's retaliation by imposing a new blockade against Nazi exports, in addition to the imports already cut off.

John Bull hadn't received a punch that hurt, he wouldn't have sized up so fast as to put his great weight on the toes of the neutrals whose friendship he values above price.

John has imposed this highly controversial measure—effective next Monday—because he thinks it may be an instrument which will play a vital part in deciding the outcome of the war. Certainly it will give rise to heated arguments over the rights of neutrals in war. That being the case, let's take a look at this fresh spot of bother.

First off, what's happened is this: When the sinking of ships (mostly British) by a new type of German mine reached epidemic proportions the other day, the English charged violation of international law. As a reprisal London decided to blockade all German exports—which at first glance seems rather silly in view of the tight blockade already existing against imports, but which actually is based on horse-sense.

The point is that a great percentage of German exports these days are sold to neighboring neutrals who also buy many raw materials from Germany for the manufacture of exportable goods, and under the new British blockade such products might be held to be of German origin. Hence the neutral anguish.

Nazis Need Cash And why should England bother about German exports when the blockade against the all-important imports already is effective? It's true that the allies are banking mightily on this stoppage of imports, but the cutting off of exports supplements this powerfully in a subtle way. The Nazis are terribly short of cash, which they need for the purchase of supplies from European neighbors not affected by the blockade. The only way Nazism can get ready cash is by selling exports. Hence the new blockade.

Germany has charged England with violating the international law. The neutrals have protested in Britain in droves, and Japan also has alleged violation of international law. The London Times says that in the United States alone there has from the first been a determination to judge the whole question on its broadest aspects.

This isn't the first cry of foul in what British Premier Chamberlain calls the "strange of wars," and it won't be the last. The position of neutrals is bound to become increasingly difficult.

International law is made up of usage and custom and is as full of holes as a Swiss cheese. A new emergency in war-time becomes a matter of interpretation by individual nations—and what are you going to do about it?

Under international law all nations have an equal right to trade high seas, and no nation at war can interfere with neutral commerce when it is carried out in accordance with the law. War laws, however, provide for the cutting off of supplies from an enemy. Whether they also permit the cutting off of exports via neutral countries is the issue now on hand.

Red Cross Drive In Clintonville Hits Record Mark

Roll Call Contributions Are Double Those Of Last Year

Clintonville.—The most generous response to the annual Red Cross roll call in the Clintonville chapter's history nears completion with memberships and contributions nearing the $600 mark, according to Francis M. Higgins, roll call chairman. The Red Cross roll call officially closes on Thanksgiving day and indications are that the Clintonville quota will be realized. This year's contributions are nearly double that of last year when $293.13 was realized. Due to unusual demands that are confronting the Red Cross because of the war in Europe, special effort to increase the membership and contributions from each community is being carried out throughout the country.

The organization for the solicitation of the Clintonville roll call this year was made up of nearly 100 persons, with the major part of the work handled by special committees from the Clintonville Woman's club, the Junior Woman's club and the American Legion auxiliary, who made the house to house canvass outside the business district, special gift contributions, and industrial plants. A special committee of workers under the direction of Carl Schroeder canvassed the business district. A special committee to solicit $5 contributing memberships was headed by Mrs. Walter Sievers. Solicitation of industrial plants was headed by William Meier, Jr. Organization of the roll call for teachers in the public schools was handled by Miss Helen Rjordan; Arthur Scheiwe for the St. Martin Lutheran school; and Sister Baptista for the St. Rose Catholic school.

Outlying Territory Organization of workers for the outlying territory in the Clintonville chapter was headed by Mrs. Chester Martin for the township of Matteson; Mrs. Margaret Christensen for Larrabee; Mrs. Ed. Heideman for Union; Mrs. August Behnke for Bear Creek; T. H. Buntrock for the village of Embarrass; and Mrs. Harvey Meyer for the city of Marion.

While the final accounting of all the committees is not complete, preliminary reports indicate the city of Clintonville's contribution to the Red Cross is well over $400; Marion approximately $100; town of Matteson $25.75; town of Larrabee $12.90; Embarrass $16; and the town of Union $9. The town of Bear Creek report on the roll call is not complete at this time.

While the Red Cross roll call officially closes on Thanksgiving day, the roll call chairman advises that the records will be kept open all of next week so that if any person was overlooked or was not given an opportunity to enroll, their membership or contribution can still be included in this year's roll call by calling any of the organi-

Cloudy Weather, Even Temperature Continue

Cloudy tonight and Friday with no decided change in temperatures in Appleton and vicinity is the forecast issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

The thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 39 degrees above at 10:30 this morning. Records at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant showed a high of 44 degrees at noon yesterday and a low of 32 degrees in the 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning.

Although border patrols had been ordered to move back at various points to avoid clashes with red troops, Finland's previous refusal to withdraw them 12 to 16 miles at Russia's insistence, led first to the soviet's denunciation of the 1932 Finnish-soviet nonaggression treaty and then to the break in relations.

Acre Yields 180 Bushels of Corn

Farmer in Southern Indiana Sets World Record for 1939

Lafayette, Ind.—Purdue university said today that Clark W. Dellinger, southern Indiana farmer, had grown 180 bushels of corn an acre for the world's highest yield of 1939.

He did it, the university reported, not with any of the high-yielding hybrids, product of twentieth-century corn breeding, but with an old-fashioned open-pollinated variety—Johnson county white—long a standby along the Ohio river.

Dellinger obtained the yield on an intensively cultivated five-acre plot on his farm in Clark county, where he raises corn and dairy cattle.

M. O. Pence, Purdue agronomist, said it topped all others reported in the corn belt this fall and fell only two and a half bushels short of the all-time record turned in by Earl Fankop of DeKalb county, Indiana, five years ago.

Purdue experts, after electrical analysis of samples from Dellinger's corn patch, figured the yield to be the equivalent of No. 3 corn with 17.0 per cent moisture.

Earlier in the season, Iowa reported 157.61 bushels an acre and Illinois 171 bushels, as checked by farm neighbors of the growers.

Police Radio Heard By Man in England

Jessie, Wis.—Here's a record for other police radio stations to shoot at: Dodge county's police radio, WOOD, has a letter from a Kent, England, world war veteran, Robert Everett, who wrote he had heard the sound in his short wave set when it communicated recently with the sheriff's radio at West Bend.

Cause of death was not immediately determined.

Committee Asks Revision of Wage, Hour Legislation

Says Law Poorly Drafted And Ambiguous in Vital Features

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—What was proposed to congress as a social reform designed to furnish a minimum wage to American workers and to prevent them from working excessive hours has now become a law governing the wages far above the minimum and a scheme to increase expenses without regard to whether the hours of work are excessive.

This is the substance of a report just adopted by a committee of the National Association of Manufacturers which frankly asks not for the repeal, but the revision of the statute.

"Experience," says the committee, "has demonstrated that the law was poorly drafted and is ambiguous in many vital features, and its administration has imposed burdens upon industry not anticipated by congress at the time it was enacted."

What the manufacturers have discovered also has been discovered by persons in many lines of business apart from the field of production. Thus, so-called service businesses, which do not manufacture anything, but employ what are known as "white-collar" workers, are caught in a straitjacket which has increased their expenses. Thus, the high-salaried man who gets $10,000 a year must be paid overtime if he works beyond the 42-hour limit, and items like these merely mean that the workers in the lower income groups cannot be paid more because the budgets are strained through increases in expense forced by the law itself.

Even the effort at the last congress to exempt all salaried workers who receive more than $200 a month salary was not successful because a CIO lobby prevented it. Likewise the law itself is so written as to discriminate against employers who do not have labor organizations in their plants or offices. The employer with a half-dozen or dozen workers who are not readily classifiable in a union is compelled to pay overtime at rates of time and a half per hour, whereas in other businesses, in which collective bargaining contracts do prevail, the law gives permission to accumulate overtime what is known as straight time off instead of cash.

These inequalities in the law have worked considerable hardship, but the worst feature of the act is the uncertainty as to what the penalties may be or what the rules really are. "Even in cases," says the committee report, "where employers do so comply, there is no assurance of protection against employee claims if the courts should subsequently hold that the administrator's construction of the law was erroneous. Since there is no limitation on the time within which employee suits may be brought, an employer may be penalized in the far distant future for an alleged violation occurring years in the past. In the view of the vagueness and uncertainty in the law itself, there is no justification for imposing such risks on employers."

Harassed by Law

Other employers besides the manufacturers have found themselves harassed by various provisions of the wage and hour law, which, despite its worthy objectives, has become an inflexible instrument often interfering with normal reemployment and business expansion. Admittedly the law was intended to weaken in most of the reform legislation nowadays, is such that pressure groups persuade officials to render decisions favorable to their interests. Thus, the wage and hour administrator publicly confessed not long ago that he decided not to press for certain amendments to the law because he felt that certain CIO leaders would be helped by fighting his battles on Capitol hill, which meant presumably in the getting of appropriations.

Public opinion throughout the nation was originally aroused in favor of the minimum wage idea as a means of preventing "sweatshops" and to insure a subsistence wage to labor. In most industries, the minimum fixed was not difficult to attain, and the law stopped there. The critics today would have been few and far between. But nobody can argue convincingly nowadays that a 42-hour week is a physical hardship in a business of office or in most productive industries. The idea of requiring a flat time and a half payment for every hour of overtime worked really has become a means of forcing the total payroll expense upward without regard to the economic requirement that the employer be given value received. The theory back of overtime pay is that it is a hardship to work beyond a certain number of hours or that idle persons should be given a chance. But unhappily, in most industries, it is not possible to put on another shift just for two or three hours' work or suddenly to hire skilled employees who can take over at a given moment a job in process.

Controls Wages
"There is no escape," says the committee, "from the fundamental principle that there can be no increase in real wages or real purchasing power unless such increases are accomplished by increased production or lower costs of production and distribution."

Business men who complain about limitations to expansion and unemployment laws are often asked to explain what they would do. Well,

Kansas City's New Police Chief Brooks No Grafting.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—I interrupted my series of pieces on the delousing of Kansas City to drop in two from Chicago proving that Willie Bluff, the labor dictator of the amusement industry, is a convicted pander who still owes all but eight days of a sentence of six months in Chicago on a specific charge of receiving from a woman inmate of a hotel the sum of $29 earned by prostitution.

Pegler

The Bluff matter was urgent only because I was afraid someone else might stumble onto the facts after I had dug them out of the files and court records and scoop me on my own piece. As to the timing of this disclosure and the reason for it, I will offer some discussion later, but to return now to Kansas City, I can report that the Pendergast gang is absolutely discredited, and that the new chief of police, Lear B. Reed, a former G-man of the young King Brady type, is so tough that even newspaper reporters can't get away with traffic violations.

Reed is a Georgia man, about 40 years old, one of the new type lawyer-cops, and is hell on graft and corruption. He is not a green hand in the criminal affairs of Kansas City, for he was stationed there in the service of the F.B.I. and thus was able to scan the dirty alliance between Pendergast's police department under Otto Higgins, the boss' police director, and the gambling and vice trades.

In the income tax case against Higgins, which resulted in a term of two years in Leavenworth penitentiary, Maurice Milligan, the federal district attorney, said he had evidence to show that Otto had been receiving $16,000 a month from Charles V. Carroll, the unnaturalized Sicilian who had general charge of the administration of underworld affairs. Carroll got eight years on three charges—perjury, mail fraud and tax dodging—and the matter of his deportation is in abeyance. Carroll had access to Higgins' office at all times, but I think Milligan wandered off-line when he said, in demanding sentence on Higgins, that Otto's acceptance of money, derived from almost every possible form of violation of civil and moral law, revealed a depth of corruption in public office almost without parallel in the history of Kansas City.

After all, Higgins was just a stooge, and the boss crook of them all was the mealy old thief and hypocrite, Tom Pendergast himself, who was supposed to have tossed around vast amounts of stolen money in private benefactions but couldn't prove up in court, and he couldn't pay the income tax things, although Milligan stipulated that he was waiving prosecutions on one of the things a large number of them would like to do is to see the wage and hour law revised promptly so that the well-paid employees are not given a subsidy they do not need or ask for and so that low-income employees can get the benefits of the wage increases they deserve when they are ready and willing to help increase output by working overtime on a basis that does not penalize the employer. Nowhere in the law, incidentally, is there any provision against the amount of overtime a worker can do, so it is obvious the measure was not a health builder, after all but a means of controlling wage scales something upon which it may be doubted whether congress ever had constitutional power to legislate.

were brought into the police department. But the rank and file were just ill-paid victims of the system. They not only had to endure pay reductions by old Henry McElroy, the crooked city manager, so that he could make a phony show of ruthless economy, but had to shoulder down contributions out of their reduced pay to Pendergast's political funds.

It was no wonder that some men so hard up and beset with petty temptations took a few dollars here and there, especially in view of the rotten example. However, the ordinary cop had little chance to graft for himself, because the gamblers, brothel keepers and all were doing business with Carroll, who did business with Higgins. The underworld didn't have to take any nonsense from common policemen.

Only last week Reed made all the remaining members of Pendergast's force swear to questionnaires stating exactly how much money was extorted from their pay for the old man's campaign funds, club dues and freewill offerings. The amounts ranged between $50 and $350 a year. The cops are glad to be protected against these thieves from their pay, and the morale of the department is up for other reasons, too. They can be men now, beholden to no dirty criminal or precinct grafter.

Papers Deserve Credit
For Part in Cleanup

McElroy had a trick emergency fund which is still being investigated. He would just write money over into his emergency fund and stand on his synthetic reputation for honest frugality in city affairs when questions were raised. Of the $8,000,000 which passed through this fund much, undoubtedly, was spent for legitimate purposes, but McElroy got credit for great personal philanthropy by contributing big

Photographic Display Will be Exhibited at College for One Week

An exhibition of 35 photographic prints selected from 485 photos entered in a contest sponsored by the Collegiate Digest last spring will be hung in the Lawrence college library for a week, starting Dec. 11.

The Lawrence college weekly, is sponsoring the showing of the display. Showing of the prints will be under the direction of Alden F. McGrew, instructor in art.

Represented in the exhibit are all types of photographs, including scenic studies, portraits, and candid camera shots. They are representative of the quality and variety of pictures being taken by college students and faculty members.

burks to charities out of the emergency pot.

I haven't told the whole story, but I think most of it has been cleaned up. However, in justice to Orville S. McPherson, the new owner of the Journal-Post, it should be said that after he took hold in September, 1933, this paper shook off its indifference and gave the Kansas City Star robust competition in the fight to smash Pendergast and clean up the mess. The papers played a big part in the reform, and, although Roy Roberts of the Star began it with his systematic expose of registration frauds, McPherson declared himself in soon after he took hold. He certainly earned credit for an assist on the play.

Washington (AP)—An increase of 3.6 per cent in the cost of food during the three months ended Sept. 15 sent the cost of living for families of wage earners in 32 large cities up 1.2 per cent for the period.

THE VOICE FROM THE GRASS ROOTS

The ambitiously titled committee of state and federal experts which set out a year ago to find out the causes and the cures for the troubles of the "problem area" of Wisconsin, commonly considered to be the tier of 25 northern counties, has received another strong hint that its progress thus far has not been impressive.

Two northern Wisconsin county board chairmen attended the last meeting of the committee in Madison and made it known that the people of northern Wisconsin are impatient for action, that they have had enough of the pretentious volumes of technical discussions which have been issued along the way. The "grass roots", said Chairman L. B. Emerich of Lincoln county and J. D. Eastwood of the Wisconsin County Boards association, expects the experts employed by the state and federal governments to come forward soon with some concrete suggestions for action.

Northern Wisconsin counties are getting tired of spending almost all of their tax receipts for public welfare enterprises, of borrowing up to the hilt. They are no more eager than other Wisconsin citizens to extend the begging hand perpetually to Madison and to Washington. If there is any way to reduce their heavy relief loads, to restore employment, to obtain once more a normal balance in their local government treasuries, they are eager to start.

It seems to us that those same county chairmen several months ago had an eminently sensible suggestion for the committee of experts. The best way to begin the rehabilitation job, they argued, would be to funnel the countless state and federal welfare activities into a single program for the relief of the northern section, a program which would have a degree of permanency and practicality.

That program could be forestry. Forests are the natural source of wealth for the northern third of Wisconsin. Forest products furnished the raw materials for the biggest boom the north ever had. Forest products can show the way to a renaissance. Today the state faces the task of rebuilding what was once an incalculable source of economic wealth, of restoring for the future a great asset which an earlier generation with less vision than greed wiped out.

Were all the money which is now poured out in WPA, PWA, farm security aids, direct relief and other forms of public beneficence which increase every year, to be devoted to a forestry program in that section of the state not another nickel would be needed to put into practice a public works project which the entire state could support for its usefulness.

As Mr. Eastwood told the "Northern Lakes States Regional Committee:

"You cannot get an army to go any faster than you can get the soldiers to march. If the public is not ready to accept the plans, the program might blow up. I should like to see you take into consideration such projects as we could take out and sell to the public that are sound and constructive. I should hate to see the plans fall because of their altitude. . . . We have plenty of reports, but now the public is demanding something. . . . Now is the time to remedy this very serious situation."

Now is the time, indeed. And now is the time also for some of the men in our depression-created agencies to coordinate their work and to shape a permanent program of rehabilitation instead of stop-gap relief, to start to lick the depression they were chosen to lick.

GENTLEMEN OF THE PRESS

Although there is plenty of criticism directed at the press round the world today, not all newspapermen are the devil-may-care fellows typified by the movies and books of recent years, the fellows who have never a care for scruples, but are bent only on "scoops."

The publishers of papers in nearly every city and village in the free countries realize their responsibility to organized society—a responsibility which compels them to report news from every side, to present new and sometimes startling ideologies, to patronize the best movements of thought for the good of the most people.

And by so doing the press of all the Americans have furthered the democratic principles of their inception. The United States has taken the lead in this direction, and our policies in this field are now truly mirrored in publications south of the Equator.

It is auspicious that the first in a series of prizes for outstanding journalistic service should have been awarded just now to South Americans, at a time when we are ardently trying to strengthen our bonds with these other Western hemisphere residents.

We can be grateful to the Boston philanthropist who has endowed these Cabot awards, and also to the board who selected as the first recipients the editors of papers in Buenos Aires and Lima. The gesture may undoubtedly help to forge another link in a chain which we can well afford to weld firmly.

HOPES AND PROMISES IN WARTIME

Mr. Chamberlain gave the Commons a cheerful view of Europe under the next peace and after the Nazis are scattered.

While the prime minister confined himself to the safety of generalities, he was pronounced in flooding the continent with sunshine. It will be a better Europe in which fear will be fettered, hatred banished, trade extended and unemployment destroyed. Smiles will replace frowns, and laughter supplant scowling threats.

Promises of this sort accompany war with a certainty of the marching songs to which the soldiers tramp. They are born of the hope that sustains men while they pass through the long dark valley that seems to lead to death and destruction. It would be the sheerest cynicism to denounce them as spurious since much of sincerity underlies their formation, but it would be rank gullibility to accept them at anywhere near par.

We in America must not think for a moment that all those high and spiritual standards which were set for us by our leaders during World War No. 1 were a mere fraud, and the first of their kind. In reality, they are habitual.

But while Mr. Chamberlain was speaking, Charles Maurras and Rene Dussaq were writing, the former in Action Francaise and the latter in a New York newspaper.

It is their avowed purpose that the dismemberment of Germany that followed World War No. 1 will seem small in comparison to what will happen at the conclusion of World War No. 2. They assert with profound emphasis that there is no such thing as peace in Europe unless Germany be entirely dismembered. And they create a formidable argument by citing German authors to support the idea.

It was Goethe who wrote: "The German is born cruel and civilization will make him ferocious." It was Schopenhauer who penned: "In provision of my death, I confess that I despise the German race for its infinite stupidity and that I blush to belong to it." Whereas Nietzsche indicted this thought: "The mere vicinity of a German delays my digestion."

These fluid writers who would now dismember Germany failed to realize that French writers could be unearthened who said as mean things about the French people, and that American writers could be found who say even meaner things about the American people. Writers sometimes like to pen skyrocket thoughts either because of their novelty, a poor digestion or general cussedness against their own people.

It must be remembered that the treaty which caused this present war was written by Lloyd George, the English liberal leader, and Clemenceau, the French liberal leader, in direct violation of promises much more specific than those already announced by Mr. Chamberlain.

However, bothersome the problem of the Germans may be to Europe, could there be anything more difficult for humanity than the effort to enforce even a small percentage of the promises made by leaders, particularly during a war?

S.P.S.M.C.C.

One of those persons often times referred to as a crank and many times discovered to be a public servant, the kind who write "letters to the editor," has suggested that it is high time for the organization of a new society, The Society for the Prevention of Stalin's Mental Cruelty to Communists.

And such a society might well have a reasonable aim. In the first place, there are those who feel that the tragedy of the present world-wide situation is the fact that communism was just beginning to bloom in this country, and that the soviet alliance with Germany has retarded this feat for many years. It obviously has made it tough for the communists, as Earl Browder amply demonstrates in his continual squirmings whenever questioned. It makes the famous Daily Worker read a little at loose ends, when it hasn't heard the news from the home front, but has to reprint it from such capitalistic sources as the press organizations.

Not only does Mr. Stalin tread on the toes of the little fellows. He is no respecter of persons. His opinion and confidence in the so-called President of the Soviet Republics is manifest in the latest news bulletins from Moscow, when compared to recent disclosures from the White House and State Department.

Mr. Stalin has definitely upset the applecart for American communists and for that we may even be able to forgive him his friendship for an avowed enemy of all this country stands for and wants.

Americans organize societies on end, and support the good ones, but there is reason to believe that this one will receive no more than jovial support.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—We talk, my dog and I, often. Sometimes we go for a long walk along those byways of our neighborhood where we can find the most grass and trees and where the sniffing, which seems to be Rusty's greatest interest in life, is best. But often we are in my study, cozy in its warmth and soft light. There, out of this world we two, we discuss many matters; and always, at the last, everything gets settled to my—and I'm sure to his—complete satisfaction.

"This is a terrible world, Rusty," I remarked last night. "A terrible world—and I feel swell."

"You heard that in a play two years ago," his eyes accused.

"Very likely," I replied. "It would be foolishly to be original, even if it were possible. We dare not say everything we feel, even between ourselves. People aren't developed to a mental temperateness to hear complete truth, even if it were possible to find it."

"A bone, open fields for a romp, a warm bed and a mistress and master to love—those are the only important affairs of life," Rusty replied, yawning.

"Granted," I said. "But human beings long since have wearied of life's essentials. They require diversion. Do you realize, you red-haired rascal, that people become so bored with status quo that they romp off to war by the ten millions? And that the millions who do not fight get a reflected thrill by devouring pictures of war's horror and gory printed accounts of same?"

"I am an enthusiast of fighting myself," Rusty said, his wagging tail stub adding emphasis. "The bigger they are, the better I fight."

"You talk like a jackass," I rebuked. "If I should ever let you loose from your leash and leave you to work out your own destiny against the big dogs and against life—it would be fins and Q.E.D. for you."

"For every dog that dies, another dog will be born," Rusty replied.

"You talk," I snorted, "like a government leader."

"I heard a bright story today," my dog remarked. "A fellow was saying that he didn't see why America couldn't keep out of the war inasmuch as England did."

"Very cute," I sneered. "You are showing symptoms of suffering acute New Yorkitis."

"Be specific," Rusty commanded.

"New Yorkitis," I explained, "is a disease indigenous to these parts. Sufferers from it are often said to have a 'gay' mind—that is, they are deluded by cleverness, regarding it as truth. Example: In Clare Boothe's 'Margin for Error' there is a scene in which a Bund leader is listening to a broadcast of a speech in which Hitler is attacking the Jews. Someone turns off the radio, and the Bund leader shouts: 'Don't do that! I am listening to Der Fuehrer!' The other replies, sardonically: 'Yeah. Listening to Der Fuehrer—by courtesy of David Sarnoff!'"

"Miss Boothe is a mistress of the bon mot and the bitterly satirical quip. Such lines are clever, but not smart, Rusty, they are not true in their implications, and my further point is that this faculty for wrapping serious problems in glib epigrams gets us into the habit of assuming that cleverness is truth. That is New Yorkitis: a delusion that wit is wisdom."

Rusty ruminated and scratched lackadaisically behind his ear with a rear paw.

"Well," he philosophized, "New York is only seven million. There are about 120,000,000 Americans elsewhere in this broad land who don't think it's smart to be smart."

"Yes," I nodded with keen satisfaction. "And for the clearer thinking of the 120,000,000, my friend, let us think loud."

Whereupon he licked my hand, I patted his head, and we dropped into satisfied silence.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO Thursday, Dec. 3, 1914

Portugal had four expeditions under arms and another mobilization had been ordered. The expeditions were being prepared for service in Serbia and Africa where Portuguese possessions were threatened. The Krupp factory at Essen, Germany, was shelled by an airplane. The damage was not known. King George of England, who had been visiting the British lines in Flanders, went out to the firing line that day.

A wire received by Dr. Samuel Plantz said the 1915 convention of the Methodist Educational association of the United States was to be held in Appleton.

Workmen were arriving in the city for the construction of the stand pipe at the stock fair grounds.

Mrs. Charles Reineck entertained the German Ladies Aid society the previous afternoon. Plans for the feeding of poor on Christmas were discussed.

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Nov. 28, 1929

Excavation for the new 6-story addition to the Wisconsin Telephone company building was to be completed within a few days, according to F. N. Belanger, acting district manager. The project was to cost approximately $425,000.

Twenty-three varsity football letters were awarded to Lawrence college gridders. They were Captain Gilbert St. Mitchell, Paul Miller, Robert Rasmussen, Paul Fischl, William Morton, Charles Vedder, Ray Brunsell, Alvin Krohn, William Bickel, Carl Voetsch, Lynn Trankle, Tommy Ryan, Lardner Coffey, Charles Barnes, Paul Gelpke, Wayne Vincent, Frank Schmeidler, D. Stenberg, R. Amundson, Henry Weigand, Jake Hovde, Bob Peterson and Harold Sperka, manager.

A. W. Boyden was elected president of the Seymour Kiwanis club at a meeting Tuesday at Hotel Paich. Other officers elected were Charles Prosser, secretary; L. H. Tubbs, district trustee; L. H. Waite, vice president; Frank Longie, treasurer.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THANKSGIVING

Gratitude for the light and shade
Of each day's changing circumstance,
For commonplace and high parade,
Falls into insignificance.
One reason for deep thanks we find:
Our bright flag floating in the wind.

Often before has this loved sight
Moved us to realize its worth.
The Stars and Stripes reflect the light
Of peace desired upon this earth
By pioneers who knelt to pray
Upon our first Thanksgiving Day.

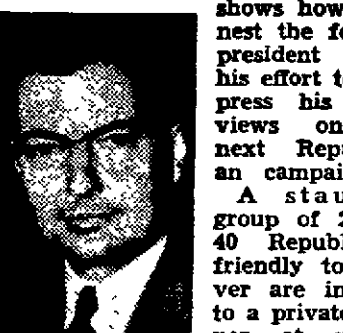

Freedom has ever been our hope,
And underneath the starry folds
Of our proud banner we may grope
Toward the good life the future holds.
Where this flag rises, Evil flies,
And men rise from their miseries.

Fly, beautiful beloved flag,
A symbol to a staggered world:
And if our faith should ever lag
You will restore it when unfurled
Before the question in our eyes,
You fling your glory to the skies.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—A dining room picture of Herbert Hoover's quiet campaign for support and vindication shows how earnest the former president is in his effort to impress his own views on the next Republican campaign.

Grover

as the speaker. He discusses public issues, naturally emphasizing his own opinions on the Roosevelt administration. What it amounts to is a sort of stately peepshow.

Each guest at the dinner is expected to hold a little dinner of his own in turn to deliver the Hoover views to an ever widening circle. It seems to be patterned on the chain letter idea.

Reports have it that there is solid headway being made in California, and progress in Minnesota and Wisconsin. Advance agent of the plan is Ben Allen of San Francisco, a former newspaperman who has been credited with putting zip into Hoover's speeches of the past three or four years.

One guest at one of the "primary" dinners reported that he noted two Hoover characteristics at these affairs: One, that at a private dinner where his guests are amiably disposed, Hoover is a convincing talker, the other reveals a yearning to demonstrate once more—in the White House—that his way was the wise way.

British and French purchasing missions already in this country create a tricky situation for J. Edgar Hoover and his anti-sabotage agencies. Following the practice of last war, the visiting missions set about buying the whole output of a plant, and sometimes the plant itself, in order to assure a steady supply of essential materials.

We checked with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and were told that reports of sabotage in any plant whatever, British-owned or otherwise, would be investigated. With only 950 FBI agents and a smaller number of military and secret service agents at his disposal for such work, G-man Hoover can't put a man in every place where sabotage might be expected. However, he has invited everybody to report to the nearest FBI office any reports or rumors of sabotage or espionage. None will be neglected.

The FBI couldn't see any grounds for discriminating against British or French-owned plants in this country, if the Allies should acquire some. After all, they will be manned by American workmen whose peace and security is important.

Clerks in the reception room of the Director of the Budget have an interesting time watching dignified governmental potentates handle themselves in embarrassing moments.

Two doors, exactly alike in design, are along one wall. One leads out into the shady and stately corridors of the State Department building where the Budget Director now is housed. The other door leads into a tiled lavatory.

Time after time governmental big guns will emerge serene and important after talking ten-cylinder words with the Budget Director. It withers them to pull open the wrong door and be confronted with an efficient bank of plumbing.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Twenty-six "diehard" states are celebrating Thanksgiving on November 30, according to tradition, and doing it with such gusto that you'd almost think it was a big-scale protest against the Roosevelt double feature idea in holidays.

In New England in particular, it looks like a demonstration of the people's right to a family reunion, regardless of orders from Washington, and their determination to give prayers of gratitude regardless of how business might be influenced.

Well, the Chrysler company is now permitted to enjoy another of its brief intervals between strikes. After fifty-four days of idleness, there's been a compromise. I don't see how they ever managed to produce any cars out in Detroit. By the time a machine gets from blueprint to the assembling line, it's been through more trouble than it ever encounters after it gets on the roads.

Future disputes will be settled by a huddle of four agents, two from the workers and two from the company. If they can't get together, they have the right to choose a fifth arbitrator, or to throw dice to break the deadlock. The next big row will be whether to use the company's dice or the workers'.

It'll never work. You're sure to see banners reading: "These dice unfair."

SHOCKING STORY

Paduach, Ky. — (P) — A simple paper sack has made life easier for toll collectors on the Paduach-Brookport bridge over the Ohio river. Hitherto, they used to hesitate to extend their hands for tolls, knowing they would receive a shock of static electricity generated by auto motors. Now that's all changed. Motorists are told to drop coins inside the sacks. The paper furnishes insulation.

TOO SILENT ORACLES

Austin, Tex. — (P) — Two-thirds of college students believe college newspapers are read by staffs sufficiently mature to take intelligent editorial stands upon national and international questions, taken by Student Opinion Surveys. The discovery was made in a poll intercollegiate sounding board of student thought published at the University of Texas.

A ROUGH TRIP IN SIGHT

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Economy is a charmed word during political campaigns, as was abundantly shown last fall.

Wyngaard

Major George Rickman, new head of the motor vehicle department, would be a candidate for the title of the most unpopular man in town if a contest were held today. For Rickman is the man who is veeding out dozens of employees from the department's payroll. In one afternoon he dismissed 58 men and women, and more will get their notices soon.

Although the town has been filled with talk of government lay-offs for months, Rickman's order was the first for a mass discharge thus far this year. The effect was prompt. While the one Madison newspaper which is a nominal supporter of the Heil regime looked on in cold silence, the other rallied at the administration for its action, printed interviews of bitter comments from the dismissed employees, and generally led the community to believe that the economy move was one of willful malice.

The correspondent has commented often on the remarkable qualities of the governor of Wisconsin, particularly his friendly personality and homely charm.

A recent incident bearing on those qualities is worth noting here. Heil slipped away from his private office and his waiting list of callers and sat down to chat with a group of newspapermen in an adjoining room. As always, he re-joined on his own career, and drew a moral from it for the benefit of the reporters: most of them young enough to be his sons.

When he was a young man, he related, he always made it a point to make his job bring him to the notice of the plant executive. When the employer would enter the shop, young Julius would be near the door. When the day ended, he would always want to know whether there was anything else to do.

And when the boss's birthday arrived, he would remember it.

On that birthday, he maintained, it is better "to send a single flower, rather than a whole bouquet. He loved that."

Just about everybody recognizes by this time that Heil and his administration face a tough winter in state financing.

The situation is delicate enough without extra complications. Therefore when they contemplate the effort of a possible unfavorable court decision on the cities' claim for full payment of their aids next month, they can only throw up their hands in desperation.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

RESPIRATORY INFECTION

In order to keep the discussion on a practical basis and avoid vague conjecture it is well to remember that no one knows what "resistance" means, but we do know what immunity means, and so when we speak of susceptibility to respiratory infection, whether it is diphtheria or influenza or pneumonia or simple sore throat we mean that the individual has less immunity against the specific infection than is necessary to protect him against the disease.

Whether any particular factor or influence or condition or group of influences may raise or lower an individual's immunity to many or all of the respiratory infections is debatable.

In recent years many pathologists have come to believe that lack of or insufficient intake of certain vitamins, notably vitamin A, may render the individual more susceptible to any and all respiratory infections. The pathologists have formed this opinion from study of animal nutrition. They have found that a deficiency in the daily intake of vitamin A is responsible for impaired growth and function of the mucous membranes in all parts of the body, and when the mucous membranes lining the respiratory tract are not as healthy and vigorous as they should be, the individual's first line of defense against bacterial invasion is weakened.

When an individual is unduly susceptible to respiratory infection there is one way he can find out whether his susceptibility is due to vitamin A deficiency, and that is by seeing to it that his daily intake of vitamin A is considerably greater for a few months than may be necessary to keep a normal individual perfectly well. It may be practicable in some instances to get such an optimal vitamin A intake from food alone—as by drinking more milk and cream, eating more butter, egg yolk, carrot greens, liver, etc.—it is easier to take pure natural vitamin A in a capsule to supplement the diet—say three capsules daily, each capsule containing 25,000 units of natural vitamin A (not pro-vitamin A, or carotene, which requires metabolism in the animal body to convert it into natural or real vitamin A). This therapeutic experiment can do no harm in any circumstance—may improve health in other respects than just immunity against respiratory infection. For example it may relieve chronic dry eyes and feeling of "sand in the eyes," or night-blindness or undue sensitivity to glare in night driving.

Another common factor or susceptibility to the more chronic respiratory troubles, such as chronic rhinitis, chronic bronchitis, chronic laryngitis, chronic sinusitis is overheated and hence excessively dried out atmosphere in the house in the season of artificial heating. The indoor temperature should be kept between 64 and 68 degrees F. and never permitted to rise above 70. One means or another of "conditioning" the air that is humidifying it, should be used, no matter what method of heating is employed. I have a monograph on humidifying the home—send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for it.

Ohm's Suggestion Would Have Saved Heil Some Trouble

Could Have Avoided Court Battles With Skeleton Legislature

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison—If the Wisconsin legislature had accepted the suggestion of Howard F. Ohm, chief of the legislative reference department, in October, Governor Heil would not now be fighting cases before the Wisconsin supreme court which are delaying the functioning of the state government, it was pointed out today.

When legislative leaders at the end of the regular session discussed plans for sine die adjournment, Ohm proposed that a skeleton body be left behind in order to fulfill routine and technical requirements of legislative procedure, including the reception of possible vetoes from Governor Heil.

But impatient legislators, anxious to return to their homes after a weary session, overrode the suggestion and pounded through an absolute adjournment resolution.

Legislature Must Act
 The state constitution provides that when the executive vetoes bills or parts of bills he must return the vetoed enactments to the legislature, which can then decide whether to reject or to accept the disapproval, together with a message giving his reasons.

Therefore when Governor Heil partially vetoed the old age pension bill and the emergency relief bill after the legislature had adjourned, he could not return them to the legislature because the legislators had already adjourned, and it opened up a way for Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman to contest both measures on the ground that they are unconstitutional.

Zimmerman successfully held up publication of the pension bill for several weeks while the case was argued before the state supreme court. The court ruled that Zimmerman had no authority to refuse to publish a bill which was regularly deposited with him, but ignored the constitutional issue. Governor Heil, in order to facilitate certification of relief and pension aids to localities, asked the court to review the question on a constitutional basis.

Administer Iodine to Guard Against Goiter, Society Says

Madison—"Wisconsin children must be protected from goiter by the use of iodine, taken preferably in tablet form," the health bulletin of the state medical society stated. "Wisconsin, which lies in the goiter belt, cannot boast of soil rich in iodine. For this reason people do not get a sufficiency of iodine in their diet, and children especially must make up for this deficiency by taking iodine tablets. There is slowly accumulating, overwhelming evidence that simple goiter is a deficiency disease found where there is insufficient iodine in the water and soil."

"In bygone days there was much speculation as to the cause of goiter and numerous theories were advanced. According to some, the mountain air produced the swelling, others attributed it to the intense cold from the snow and ice acting upon the exposed neck, and according to still others it was due to drinking melted snow."

Lack of Iodine
 "Modern science has shown that one cause which allows the goiter to develop is the lack of iodine in the water. Small amounts of iodine, in the form of various salts of the element, given to children living in goiter districts, compensate for the lack of this element in the drinking water and prevent the development of goiter."

"The thyroid gland is a gland of internal secretion. The chemical substance which it pours into the blood controls in part the rate at which the body liberates energy; it regulates the speed at which the functions of our body are performed; and it plays a part also in the development of the body and the brain. If the secretion is deficient, the rate of the vital processes slows down; the person so affected becomes listless, dull, and indifferent, and his skin dry and puffy. If the gland secretes too actively, quite the opposite state is produced. The heart beats very fast, and the energy of the body is expended at an abnormally rapid rate. The person in whom this condition exists becomes extremely nervous and excitable, and usually also very weak and thin."

Gland Swells
 "In this condition of over-secretion, the gland swells a little, and so the name goiter is applied, although there is no relation whatsoever to the type of goiter which results from deficiency of iodine in the drinking water. The type of goiter which gives rise to nervousness and loss of weight may occur in any part of the country; it has no specific geographical distribution as does the variety that results from iodine deficiency."

"Simple goiter in school children and preschool children can be prevented by a simple medication—the use of IODINE. Your physician because of his professional knowledge, can determine the correct quantity for your child, if the condition of the child warrants the administration of iodine. Affections of the thyroid, due to causes other than deficiency of iodine can be relieved through scientific treatment."

Clapper Insists Political Writers Can be Independent

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—This dispatch is written to keep the record straight. Or if you don't like it, just call it a political writer's alibi. This is no message for posterity. It is a personal memo addressed to those who can't read a political column for what it says but must discover some hidden significance behind it.

Over several months I have frequently written about Paul McNutt. He looked like good copy to me because he seemed to be a coming figure in the Democratic presidential group and the subsequent amount of newspaper space given to him vindicates that judgment. Yet friends are indicating to me that they regard me as a "McNutt man." When Thomas E. Dewey was running for governor of New York, he seemed to be a figure destined to be much discussed and I wrote quite frequently about him. Then I was a "Dewey man." In 1935 I thought Alf Landon most likely to obtain the Republican presidential nomination in 1936 and I wrote a great deal about him. Then I was a "Landon man." Throughout all of this I have written much about President Roosevelt so I am—wherever that label serves some purpose—described as a "New Deal journalist." It's all hogwash.

Like all political writers I gather favorable and unfavorable impressions of political figures who are in the news or who are about to appear in the news. These impressions color what is written. The assumption is that readers want to know what a writer thinks of the man about whom he is writing—at least that's the first question asked whenever reader and writer meet face to face. So these impressions go into the copy, directly or indirectly.

No writer can be completely objective. There is no reason why he should be. The attempt to be so results in some curious newspaper copy, often causing the real substance to be killed out of a dispatch as a sacrifice to a kind of superficial factualness.

'Factual' Reporting Is Often Difficult Job
Some time ago a reporter, obliged to write "factual" copy, was handling a supreme court decision. He first wrote that the "supreme court had rebuked Secretary of Agriculture Wallace." Then he decided that was a bit of interpretation which was forbidden under the rules of his office. Yet he knew that was the import of the decision. So he consulted a more ingenious colleague who changed the sentence to read: "The supreme courts decision was generally regarded as a rebuke to Secretary Wallace." By inserting the phrase "generally regarded" the rule of factual reporting was technically complied with.

If a writer cannot be completely objective, he can be independent. I know of newspapers which exhibit the most unreasonable likes and dislikes, and yet are independent and are so recognized. But every political columnist has a label pasted on him—he is either New Deal or anti-New Deal. Newspapers considered independent are in some cases pro-New Deal and in other cases anti-New Deal. Can't it be so with a columnist? Does he have to be suspected of trying to be a typewriter Warwick?

I expect to go on spilling out copy for many years to come, God and my editors willing, and to see many faces come and go. So for the record, put me down as an independent enjoying a number of likes and dislikes, some of which I hope are justified, and some of which no doubt are cockeyed, and all subject to change for real or fancied reasons. That's that.

Appleton Households Busy With Family Gatherings as City Observes Thanksgiving

ONE of the few remaining holidays set aside especially for family observance, Thanksgiving day finds nearly every Appleton household either entertaining relatives or friends at dinner or going to some family gathering in the city or out-of-town. A casual check-up indicates that there will be a good many turkey skeletons passed on to the family dog tonight, with Rover having pretty slim pickings after the holiday diners have left the table. In spite of the fact that a number of local families had to celebrate Thanksgiving last week because of guests from out of the state or from cities which observed the earlier date, most Appleton people are having their Thanksgiving dinners today.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCourt and son, Jimmy, Wisconsin Rapids, are guests today of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Bolton, E. College avenue.

Out-of-town for Thanksgiving are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roemer and daughter, Judy, who are spending the day with Mrs. Roemer's parents in Portage, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roemer and daughter, Peggy, who are with the Bertram family at Malone.

Mrs. H. J. Stokes left for Oakland, Calif., Wednesday morning after visiting here for five weeks with relatives and friends.

Those who will sit down to Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Fisher and family, 532 W. Prospect avenue, include Mrs. Fisher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kramer of Appleton, and Mr. and Mrs. John Noonan of Chicago. The latter couple will be weekend guests at the Fisher home.

Mrs. Frank Bradford and daughter, Mrs. Jennie Reiter, 208 N. Outagamie street, are having a house full of guests today for dinner. They include Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher, Neenah; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bradford and daughter, Gladys, Fond du Lac; Levi Welch, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Arden, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bradford and Mr. and Mrs. Delmont Bradford, Appleton.

Dinner guests today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Rehbein, 500 E. Grant street, are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rehbein and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rehbein and children, Appleton; and Mrs. Hugo Goese, Kaukauna. Mrs. Elmer Rehbein who was called to Aurora, Minn., last Sunday by the serious illness of her mother, returned to Appleton last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Spindler, 629 N. Leminwah street, are spending Thanksgiving with relatives in Peculiar, Ill. They will return Saturday.

Polyphonia of Green Bay to Give Concert

THE Polyphonia society of Green Bay will give a Christmas concert in Appleton Sunday evening, Dec. 17, under the direction of Ludolph Arens, founder and acting conductor of the society since its organization eight years ago. The concert will be sponsored by the Knights of Pythias lodge and will be given in its auditorium on E. Lawrence street.

An orchestra of 40 musicians and a chorus called "The Polyphonia Singers" will present the concert. Soloists for the occasion will be Miss Dorothy Du Charme, Green Bay contralto, who has made a number of prior appearances with the orchestra.

The Polyphonia Christmas concert has become an annual event in Green Bay, where it is given before audiences of music lovers in an auditorium lighted only with candles. At the request of the director, it proceeds uninterrupted by the applause. The program consists entirely of Christmas music and expresses the Christmas spirit of devotion and festivity.

Last year several members of the Appleton Knights of Pythias organization attended the concert at Grace Lutheran church, Green Bay, and were so impressed with its beauty that they decided to sponsor it in Appleton this year. It will be the orchestra's second concert in Appleton, as the Knights of Pythias sponsored its appearance here last April.

Tickets for the Christmas concert will be sold by members of the lodge and also may be purchased at the Meyer-Seeger Music company

WATA Launches Christmas Seal Sale in County

"Protect Your Home From Tuberculosis" Is Theme of Campaign

Letters containing Christmas seals of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association went into the mails today as the Appleton division of the association opened its annual sale.

A year ago the Outagamie Health association and the anti-tuberculosis association merged their programs, so again, only the W.A.T.A. Christmas seal is being sold in Appleton and Outagamie county. Miss Carrie Morgan is chairman of the Appleton division with John Trautmann as the sales manager.

Other seal managers in Outagamie county are Mrs. Leo Kung at Shiocton, Mrs. Alta Hough at Hortonville, Mrs. C. E. Roach at Black Creek, Mrs. W. W. Webb at Kilmory, Mrs. C. A. Van Vuren at Seymour and Mrs. Carl Hassmann at Little Chute. The sale at Kaukauna is sponsored by the Kaukauna Woman's club of which Mrs. Jesse Hamilton is president. Mrs. Victor Haen is the sales manager for that city.

Rockwell Kent, American artist, writer and lecturer, is the designer of this year's Christmas seal.

"Protect Your Home from Tuberculosis" is the theme of this year's campaign. As a symbol of that protection, Kent has used an angel with outstretched arm. Against a brilliant blue background, the double-barred cross, international symbol of the fight against tuberculosis, is prominently displayed.

Origin of Seal

The idea for Christmas seals came from a postal clerk, Einar Holboell, a Dane. He was sorting stacks of Christmas cards and packages one December night in 1903 at the post office in Copenhagen. Wondering what sort of Christmas was in store for poor children with tuberculosis, he conceived the idea of harnessing the Christmas spirit in a more practical way to fight the dread disease, placing of an extra stamp on every Yuletide package or letter. From his inspiration came the tuberculosis Christmas seal, sold first in Denmark in 1904, and adopted in this country in 1907.

"Some persons may want more than the number of seals we are sending them," Miss Morgan, chairman, said. "Others may want less, and in that case they are asked to return the unwanted number to headquarters. For those who desire to have more than we mail out, I can say that the committee cheerfully will send out additional sheets on notification."

"Distribution and purchase are greatly simplified by this method of mailing of the seal. The addressed return envelope is a convenience to the purchaser. The public has never failed to cooperate in this annual campaign against tuberculosis and the committee is confident that there will be no letdown this year."

26 States Eat Turkey Today While Rest Follow Routines

New York—(AP)—Residents of 26 states observed Thanksgiving today while the rest of the nation went about its ordinary business—the turkey and the celebrations only a week-old memory.

The 26 were mostly states which did not accept President Roosevelt's proclamation designating the holiday a week earlier than usual. But they included three—Colorado, Mississippi and Texas—which observed both days.

Business generally took less of a holiday than it did last week, for many of the populous centers are situated in states which chose the earlier observance. The District of Columbia celebrated a week ago, under the president's proclamation; and government offices in Washington were functioning as usual today. But federal employees in many states enjoyed a second holiday.

Football schedules arranged long in advance of the president's decision to advance the holiday, gave fans more games to select from today than they had a week ago. Some of the traditional Thanksgiving games were played last Saturday, as a compromise.

New England declined to change its historic observance and Plymouth, Mass., prepared a 17th century pageant and feast commemorating the first Thanksgiving.

The states celebrating today, in addition to those with double holidays, are: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Brothers Will be United for First Time at Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(AP)—Today will be a day of double Thanksgiving for Harley Loomis, 42, proprietor of a Milwaukee restaurant.

He was to be united with three brothers he had never seen before—Emmett, Emer and Earl Love of Oshkosh, Wis.

Until a month ago Loomis was unaware he had any close relatives. He had been born in Richland Center and shortly after his birth adopted by a Fond du Lac county farmer.

Last month he visited his birthplace and learned he had a brother, Harry Love, who was living in Milwaukee. From Harry, Loomis learned about his three other brothers.

Two Appleton Men Return With Deer

Frank Sohr, Otto Wickert Get 170 and 190-Pound Bucks

Two more Appleton hunters got back from the northwoods yesterday and didn't need any excuses about the weather or the number of deer for they both got their bucks.

Frank Sohr, 506 N. Superior street, bagged a 10-point buck weighing 170 pounds Sunday near Three Lakes in Oneida county. Hunting with him were Charles Debenack, 929 W. Brewster street, and August Witzke, 507 E. Spring street, who returned empty handed.

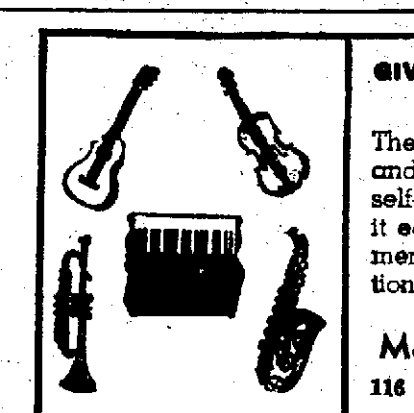

Otto Wickert, 809 N. Durkee street, shot a 190-pound animal about 25 miles east of Eagle River. His hunting companion was Jack Brooks of Eldron.

It Is Said--

Pedestrian accidents would be ended forever if all adults were half as careful as some grade school youngsters in Appleton. Yesterday at the intersection of College avenue and Walnut street a youngster, about eight years old stood waiting for the lights to change to green so he could cross the street safely. An adult came along and started to run across the street. The youngster became very disturbed and shouted after him: "Say don't you know you shouldn't run across the street, you might get hit by a car."

The youths will be charged with larceny in municipal court Friday, Police Chief George T. Prim, said.

Thanksgiving

- The spirit of Thanksgiving is in every seed and blossom, in the ripening grain and fruit, in the harvest that brings sustenance to the children of the earth.
- Let us give prayerful thanks that we live where men are free, in a land where bodies and souls are unfettered by the chains of tyranny that shackle the people of other countries.
- Let us give thanks that our leaders are made responsive to the will of the people and that our will is for peace.

Postmaster Advises Mailing Early, Addressing Correctly

With his staff girding for the annual Christmas rush, Postmaster Stephen Balliet today made a few suggestions on Christmas mailing that, if followed, will help both the postal clerks and those sending the gifts and greetings.

Just as merchants urge people to do their Christmas shopping early, so does the postmaster advise mailing early. During the holiday season, the volume of mail in post offices throughout the land increases about 200 per cent. It is physically impossible, the postmaster pointed out, to handle the great mass of mail efficiently and promptly within a few days. Generally speaking, 10 days before Christmas should be the deadline for mailing gifts and cards.

Correct, adequate addressing of cards and packages is another guarantee that the greetings and gifts will get to the intended receivers. Last Christmas, the postmaster said, the Appleton post office was forced to destroy more than 5,000 cards in unsealed envelopes because they were incorrectly addressed. Some came in without either address or stamp.

The postmaster pointed out that first class letters get directory service. That is, if the party has moved, the letter or card will be forwarded without charge or return in a few days. Generally speaking, 10 days before Christmas should be the deadline for mailing gifts and cards.

Winnebago Board Members Act on Mass of Routine

Supervisors Will Resume November Session Friday Morning

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—The Winnebago county board took action on a large number of routine matters Wednesday afternoon before adjourning until 10 o'clock Friday morning. Although the board will convene as a body Friday, it is expected to adjourn early and spend the rest of the day in committee sessions.

A resolution requesting an appropriation of $550 for the purchase of a dictating machine for the pension department was passed by a vote of 22 to 6 Wednesday afternoon.

Supervisor Earl Hughes, town of Neenah, amended the original resolution to read that the board would advertise for bids, but his amendment lost on an acclamation vote. Chairman Shea pointed out that only two firms had submitted the equipment and both had submitted the same price—$550. He said they had offered to install the machine on trial and that the board could refuse to accept it if it didn't prove satisfactory.

County Treasurer Earl Fuller reported that the county had $41,818 in cemetery perpetual care funds invested at present. The funds were placed with the treasurer for investment by 23 county cemetery associations and the cost to the county for such investment for the years 1935 to 1940 was estimated at $1,006.

Reports on Collections

John Moore, attorney for the pension department, submitted a report of his activities for 1939. Moore was engaged at the last board session to represent the county in suits against other counties and municipalities for recovery of amounts of relief furnished by Winnebago county to persons having legal settlements in other counties. He spent $272 out of an $800 appropriation and collected $827.47 back claims. Adverse decisions were handed down in four of the 29 cases which were tried and a considerable number of them are still pending. Some claims collected were from 10 to 12 years old.

The board unanimously approved a resolution authorizing the highway department to equip two of its trucks with radio receivers and one small car with a transmitter out of funds in the department's machinery budget. The equipment will enable the highway commissioner to contact highway workers from the central county radio station, WAKE, Oshkosh.

Other resolutions approved by the board were: A resolution allowing the county treasurer $25 for traveling expenses incurred in attending the annual county treasurers' association convention; a measure authorizing the board of trustees of the county home and asylum to expend $8,000 of their budget for permanent improvements at the home in 1940; and a resolution authorizing the sheriff's and coroner's committee to pay the sheriff 25 cents per meal for his pensioners.

Turn Down
The board unanimously turned down a bid of $3,750 for the purchase of the old county garage and recommended a sale price of from $7,000 to $8,000 for the property. The sale bid of the Osborn Realty company, Oshkosh, was declared to be "ridiculously low."

The salaries question which has proved itself a thorn in the side of the supervisors all session came up for a thorough airing just before adjournment. No definite action was taken, however. The chairman of the board, J. F. Shea, Utica, is still expected to appoint a special committee to iron out difficulties and set a salary schedule for courthouse workers, but he hasn't done so as yet.

Supervisor Edward G. Sonnenberg, Menasha, argued that the only solution was to keep the board in session until it agreed on a schedule. "We have no trouble getting a committee of 10 or 15 to agree but there are 46 of us voting and everyone would express his opinion openly we might get somewhere," he maintained.

Earl Hughes, Neenah, declared that past salary schedules didn't take into consideration the rate of pay employees in private industry. "There seems to be a halo around the courthouse workers," he opined. "Why don't we compare their salaries with that of employees in private industry?"

Wolff Named Chairman Of Printer Club Party

Menasha—Kenneth Wolff has been named chairman of the general committee which will plan the annual Christmas party of the Printers club of Menasha High school. Other members of the committee are Jack Engler, John Baldauf, Veri Franz, Donald Beck, Richard Zolkowski, Donald Jensen and Kenneth Finch.

YOUNGSTERS DISTRIBUTE THANKSGIVING BASKETS

Menasha—School children of Menasha each year help to spread Thanksgiving cheer among homes in Menasha by providing Thanksgiving baskets. Shown above are some of the baskets and the youths who helped to distribute them Wednesday. Left to right, the boys are Kenneth St. Marie, Tommy Frederick, Edward Boyce and Melvin Prottor. The activity is carried on each year by the Junior Red Cross. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Junior Red Cross Unit Helps Provide Thanksgiving Dinners

Menasha—Thanksgiving dinners in more than 10 Menasha homes are just a little brighter today because of the activity of the Menasha chapter of the Junior American Red Cross.

Each year the grade school children bring to school some surplus article from home. It may be a package of breakfast food, canned cherries, pumpkin, peas, corn, or soup, a head of cabbage, or any food item. There is no planning of what to bring. Each youngster brings what he can.

Then the children divide up the articles evenly, place them in large bushel baskets, and decorate the baskets with crepe paper. The children make their own division of the articles and the teachers don't change them.

Homes to receive the baskets are selected by Mrs. Sigrid Dudley, school health nurse, and other members of the Menasha chapter of the American Red Cross. Mrs. S. E. Crockett is the Junior Red Cross chairman for the Menasha chapter. The youngsters assist with the distribution too.

The motto of the Junior Red Cross is "I serve." To have a fuller realization of the joy and fun of thinking and doing for others both kindergarten groups at Jefferson school prepared two quarts of cranberry sauce which were put into the baskets along with the other good things brought from home.

Miss Naomi Parkinson is the instructor of the Jefferson school kindergarten.

Field Nurse for WATA Speaks on Association Work

Miss Garvey Explains Use Of Proceeds From Sale of Seals

Menasha—Miss Ada Garvey, field nurse for the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, speaking at the regular meeting of the Twin City Catholic Daughters of America, Court Allouez, outlined the work of the association, stating that in the last 30 years, the death rate from tuberculosis in Wisconsin had decreased from 250.9 to 89.9 and beds available in 23 sanatoria have increased from 100 to 2,400.

Proceeds from the Christmas seal sale, which begins today, are used to further educational work as well as to maintain clinics, in order that early discovery of the disease as well as treatment and care may be effected, thus decreasing the death rate. Miss Garvey pointed out. No home is safe from tuberculosis until all homes are safe and early discovery means early recovery. Tuberculin tests will be made at schools next week and all children should be urged to take the tests, the speaker declared. She stressed the importance of follow up work in those cases where positive reaction has been noted, in order that every member of the family may be examined to determine sources of infection.

Miss Garvey also spoke of her vacation trip to the West Indies, Venezuela and Panama. While in Havana, Cuba, she was a guest of Dr. Romerguera, director of tuberculosis work in Cuba. She visited many of the schools. During her talk, Miss Garvey displayed many articles that she brought back with her.

Mrs. J. F. Zylkowsky was hostess chairman during the social hour which followed.

Doubler Must Make Best of Poor Bargain

BY ELY CULBERTSON
"Dear Mr. Culbertson: When I was in Birmingham recently, at the Alabama state tournament, I played a little rubber bridge on one occasion and held the following hand as the South player:
"Both sides vulnerable.
"South, dealer.

Table with 3 columns: NORTH, WEST, EAST. Cards listed for each position.

*The bidding:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 spade Pass
1 no trump Pass 3 spades Double
2 no trump Double Pass Pass

I think North's jump rebid (three spades) was decidedly optimistic, but certainly not in the same class of optimism with the two doubles from the opponents that followed.

"West opened the heart five, which I won with the eight. I led a small spade and, when the jack was played, I won with the king and came back with the deuce. East, seeing no advantage in holding up, won with the queen and played the king of clubs. (I haven't analyzed the hand for the merits of the defensive play.) When he did that I won with the ace of clubs and led the three of spades. I then led a small diamond to the ten and East won with the ace and led a small club. As my contract then was assured I decided to play for extra tricks and finessed the club ten. When it held, I laid down the queen of clubs and discarded the small diamond. I then led a small heart and West split his equals. On winning with the king I laid down the two spades, discarding diamonds from my hand, and West was caught in a squeeze for the fulfilled contract with two overtricks.

"I thought you might be interested in the hand from the squeeze standpoint, regardless of the merits of the defense. As I said, I haven't analyzed it, but probably West could have kept out of the squeeze by winning the diamond king and leading the heart instead of waiting for his partner's ace to win the diamond trick. John D. Gibb, Anniston, Ala.

"The only really interesting points about this hand deal with the defense and bring up a point that is too seldom appreciated. It is inevitable that aggressive players should get into trouble once in a while by making penalty doubles largely on suspicion. Under these unhappy circumstances the only solution is to make the best of a bad bargain—to take one's licking and get out as cheaply as possible. Just because a player has made one mistake is no reason for him to get stubborn and see the thing thru to the bitter end. Thus East's desperation play of laying down the club king was an instance of very bad philosophy. Perhaps he had in mind to attempt a Deschappelles coup; that is, to knock out dummy's club entry in the hope of nullifying the spade suit. But this idea could not possibly be sound, inasmuch as the heart king was unquestionably a second entry. The only possible advantage in laying down the club king was to find the queen in West's hand. But it should be noted that a diamond shift by East would have been much more logical in that it could find either the diamond king or the queen with West. Had East made this diamond shift he would have been assured of four tricks whether West, on winning with the diamond king, chose to return a diamond or a club.

The 400 points saved by the prevention of overtricks would have been at least a little solace to the East-West team.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's column.

On the left side, there is first the table fork, then the fish fork. It should be remembered that the blade of the knife should be turned toward the plate. Any additional silver used during the meal, is brought in with the course for which it is to be employed, such as salad, game, dessert and coffee. These utensils are never placed on the table in advance.

Not so many years ago green beans were spoken of as "string beans," because the string along the sides had to be removed to make them attractive when served. Through research and experiment, by seedmen and others green beans are now grown that do not have the strings that need to be removed, so the beans are called just green beans, or stringless beans.

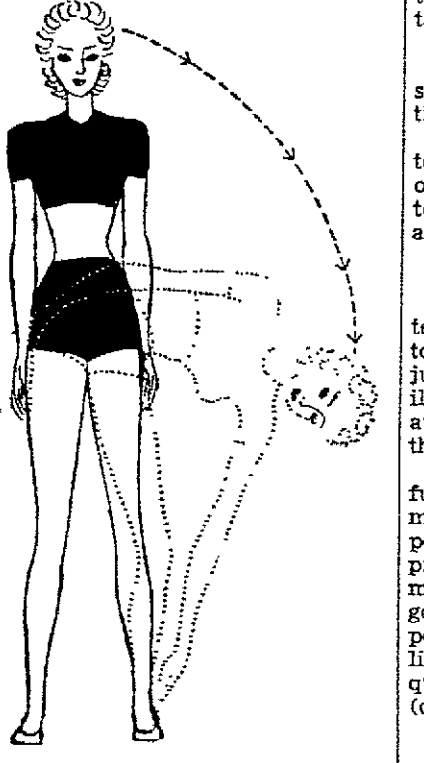

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

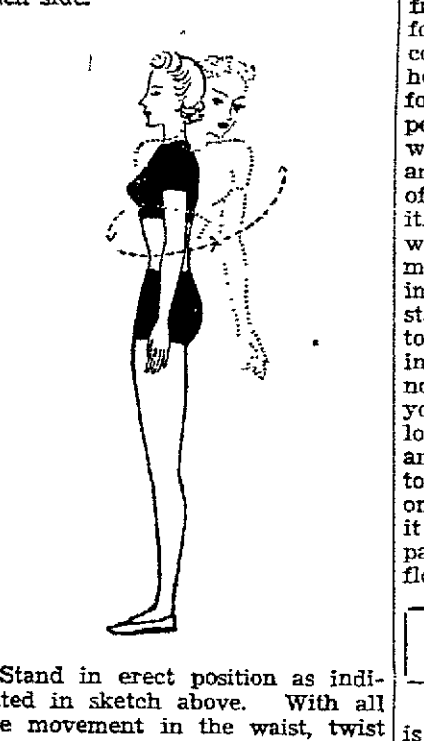

A thick waistline is usually the result of physical inactivity, unless you are so proportioned in bone structure that your chest, waist and hips vary little in measurement. Girls so proportioned are usually very tall and very slim. The majority of women should approximate these measurements: Bust—twenty-nine inches plus the number of inches you exceed five feet in height. Waist—eight inches less than bust measurement. Hips—two inches more than bust measurement.

Thus a girl who is five feet, six inches tall should boast of these measurements: Bust—35 inches, Waist—27 inches, Hips—37 inches. These rather normal (or average) measurements can be retained if you exercise sufficiently, eat intelligently and get the rest you need.

To Attain Wasp Waist
According to Neils Bukh, whose famous exercises I feature occasionally in this column, the lengthened wasp waist, much in fashion today, is achieved by stretching and twisting the muscles of the waistline. He has devised a series of movements which, if done regularly and rhythmically, tends to slim the waist noticeably. His theory is that these suggested twisting and bendings will remove the bumps and bulges of flesh which thicken the midriff of the inactive body.

Stand with feet apart as illustrated with body completely relaxed. Drop your torso to one side, bending the knee slightly, and touch your ankle with your hand (dotted figure shows how). Return to standing position, completely relaxed, and drop torso to other side. Repeat this exercise ten times each side.

Stand in erect position as indicated in sketch above. With all the movement in the waist, twist the upper part of your body vigorously to one side, pushing the shoulder as far back as possible. (See dotted figure.) Then swing the upper part of your body to the other side pushing that shoulder back as far as possible. Do this exercise in a rhythmical swing as if it were part of a dance. Repeat ten times.

Part II
Now drop the body forward limply, knees lightly bent, hands touching the toes. From this position

Repeat ten times.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's column.

Good Taste Today
By Emily Post

POINT A FINGER?
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it bad manners to point a finger?

Answer: You might point at an object if you were very sure that no one could think you were pointing at him. It is not impolite to point out something in a far-off view, especially when obviously sight-seeing. But at such times it is better to point out an object by description than to point at it with a finger. At a fair, for example: "It's the little building at the left of the tall white one."

Typewritten Invitations?
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever permissible to typewrite invitations to testimonial dinners or banquets?

Answer: Such invitations are often printed, usually in semblance of engraving, but it is not suitable to typewrite invitations or acceptances or regrets.

Speaking to People Newly Bereaved
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell us the proper thing to be said to a friend or a relative who has just lost one of the immediate family. Is it even better to say nothing at all about the actual incident? In this case, what could be said?

Answer: It is best to say nothing further than "I'm so sorry"—never mind about what. To a sensitive person in deepest grief, a warm pressure of the hand means much more than anything else—and then go on your way. If the bereaved person chooses to talk to you, you listen of course, and answer any questions, but never question him (or her).

At An Anniversary Party
Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are invited to the crystal wedding anniversary "at home" of business friends. We are probably one of the few business friends invited. What do you advise is our obligation, and as the hours mentioned are from four to seven, when do you suggest that we go, and how short a time may we stay?
Answer: You should go at about five (although any time between four-thirty and six-thirty is equally correct), congratulate the host and hostess and stand talking with them for a few moments if no one happens to arrive. Then you make your way through to the dining-room and have a cup of tea or a glass of punch, and eat something with you want to. On the other hand, you may stay as long as you are enjoying yourselves, and other people stay. At a very big party it is easy to leave quickly, even without having any refreshments, and you do not say good-bye. At a small party you must sit down and stay at least long enough to drink a cup of tea, and you may talk to some one next to you who is not talking with any one else. There is no obligation but it is proper to send the "bridal pair" either a gift of glass or some flowers.

My Neighbor Says—
Any kind of a plant container is all right if it is used properly. A clay pot should be used for a moist surface either of sphagnum moss or a commercial article designed for this purpose. Thus the plant in a clay pot has the same benefit as a plant in a greenhouse which is grown in a moist bench of soil, sand or cinders.

Always expel the air from a hot-water bottle after you pour the water into it by gently pressing the bottle upward toward the stopper. Never fill the bottle more than two-thirds full.

Part II
Now drop the body forward limply, knees lightly bent, hands touching the toes. From this position

Repeat ten times.

Wrong to Believe All Children Should be Treated in Same Way

BY ANGELO PATRI

Allan is four, sturdy for his age. Chester, a couple of months older, is smaller and lighter, and very imaginative, therefore a fine playmate. Allan loves him dearly, and in spite of protests and punishments, the moment Allan sees Chester, he falls on his neck, hugs him hard, so hard that Chester squeals angrily. Sometimes Allan bites as well as hugs his friend.

"Why do you hurt Chester?" demanded both mothers at once.
"I didn't hurt him. I only loved him hard."
"How'd you like to be bitten, I'd like to know? How'd you like to be hurt by somebody bigger than yourself, like me, for instance?"

Spanking, isolation, disapproval of all kinds seem to work for the moment. The offender repents with tears, and promises so earnestly not to offend again that the mothers' hearts are softened once more and he is allowed out to play, under the watchful eyes of his guardians. In a few days the whole pattern is repeated.

Make his term of isolation a month long instead of a few hours and his mind may be impressed with the idea that such ruthless affection results in no good for him. His mind is hard to impress. It is going to be that way all through his life. He won't intend to annoy anybody, or hurt those he loves, but he will until he is made to feel, to suffer the inconvenience of loneliness, isolation and strong disapproval from those about him.

"But Chester wants to play with him. He would be punished, too."
That cannot be helped. Chester suffers as things are, any time. But the feeling long for a way than that Allan, six, the habit of expressing his feelings, his will, in this harsh and ruthless fashion. He is going to have to learn self-control someday, somehow, and it will be easier if he begins to learn while he is young. People who do not adjust themselves to the ways of other folk scatter pain and sorrow wherever they go. Whenever one of us commits a wrong a hundred others, innocent of even the knowledge of the wrong, have to suffer the consequences. Better take the crude youngster in hand early for his own good, and for the good of the community.

We might as well understand that some minds are hard to impress. A passing experience has merely a passing effect upon them. To make any lasting impression the experience must last, must persist, until its meaning sinks into the mind. Once it gets there it usually stays, if the child is normal-minded. Slow to grasp, steel to clutch is the way a great teacher, Dr. Edward Johnston, puts it.

Opposing such minds are those of the quick-moving, quick-learning children. Their minds are like sensitive plates that take every impression and hold on to all of them. A word, a look, a suggestion, is all they need. The wise teacher and parent considers carefully what sort of mind the child has before deciding how to deal with him. No greater mistake can be made in this serious business of child rearing than to say and believe that all children should be treated alike. That is impossible.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

member I had whipped him for some little misdeed?

"And then I grow panicky lest he might not love me if I punish him. Of course, I don't want him to grow up as a naughty boy, but I can't scold him or reprimand him. What shall I do?"

DIAGNOSIS:
This is a common problem of mothers, but they must learn to view the situation in a more intelligent light.

If you don't teach your child right from wrong, and occasionally use corporal punishment to make sure that he obeys, then somebody else will later suffer from your own errors.

If you let him repeat wrong deeds, you are actually an accessory to his naughtiness. With your superior intelligence and knowledge, you are supposed to guide him in his development of good habits.

If he grows up selfish, a little grandstander who believes he can cheat without being caught, simply because you failed to make him suffer for such naughtiness in his childhood, you are responsible for his later misdeeds.

Yesterday: Smith tells Michael that because he needed money he agreed to submit to an experiment by Murchison. Now he lives in fear that Murchison will ask him to keep his bargain. . . . Michael's father, the district attorney, comes to dinner.

I would forgive you for keeping this mystery from me, Tuck. I solemnly told Michael's father, "on condition that you use your keen and agile brain in solving my little private mystery. Michael can't. He's too dumb. Can't. It has a mechanical bent that is quite beyond my poor feminine mind. Bunny can't. I asked her. So it's up to you."

"Certainly," John Forrester agreed. "And what is it then, my dear?"
"It's my necklace," Tuck said. "Where is it? It's gone."

"Gone?" Disappeared. Michael said the inside of the pipes are smooth. And even I can see that if you drop a small and slippery thing down the inside of a large pipe it would have the tendency to land at the bottom. But it didn't."

Her father-in-law surveyed her from beneath bushy brows. "You are not talking to Michael," he reminded her, "whose mind works in a scatter-brained fashion. I am a bit slow and ponderous, perhaps, but I feel that I could do with a wee bit more detail."

Tuck explained. "It's not in the pipe? In the basement?"
"No."
"Nor yet in the furnace?"
"No."

"Well, then," he said, and settled comfortably back in his chair, "it must be somewhere in between." "Very simple indeed," said Michael.

Tuck sighed. "I suppose it's gone forever," she said. "I can't quite see us pulling the house to pieces for a string of corals. It will break a heart to lose it." She looked sideways at her father-in-law. "I thought perhaps it had found out where the diamonds were hidden and gone to keep them company," she said.

"Humpf. Diamonds?"
"Diamonds," she repeated firmly. "You may all laugh if you wish, but I am more and more firmly convinced that the diamonds—Professor Murchison's diamonds, are hidden somewhere in this house, and that someone knows it and is looking for them. CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If a mother deliberately withheld essential medicine from her sick child, thereby preventing his getting well, wouldn't you consider her a bad mother? Well, occasional punishment and correction are necessary psychological medicines without which children will not develop healthy, happy personalities. Don't wait till the police have to make up for your negligence as a parent.

CASE P-116: Mabel J., aged 27, is the mother of a little boy, "Jimmy" is really a darling, but he gets into a lot of mischief," she began our discussion.
"There are times, too, when I suppose I ought to punish him, but I just can't force myself to do it."
"Dr. Crane, I keep thinking, suppose something should happen to him. Wouldn't I feel terrible to remember I had whipped him for some little misdeed?

"And then I grow panicky lest he might not love me if I punish him. Of course, I don't want him to grow up as a naughty boy, but I can't scold him or reprimand him. What shall I do?"

DIAGNOSIS:
This is a common problem of mothers, but they must learn to view the situation in a more intelligent light.

If you don't teach your child right from wrong, and occasionally use corporal punishment to make sure that he obeys, then somebody else will later suffer from your own errors.

If you let him repeat wrong deeds, you are actually an accessory to his naughtiness. With your superior intelligence and knowledge, you are supposed to guide him in his development of good habits.

If he grows up selfish, a little grandstander who believes he can cheat without being caught, simply because you failed to make him suffer for such naughtiness in his childhood, you are responsible for his later misdeeds.

Yesterday: Smith tells Michael that because he needed money he agreed to submit to an experiment by Murchison. Now he lives in fear that Murchison will ask him to keep his bargain. . . . Michael's father, the district attorney, comes to dinner.

Flat silver is placed on the table in the following manner: Table knife on the right, next, fish knife, soup spoon and finally oyster fork. On the left side, there is first the table fork, then the fish fork. It should be remembered that the blade of the knife should be turned toward the plate. Any additional silver used during the meal, is brought in with the course for which it is to be employed, such as salad, game, dessert and coffee. These utensils are never placed on the table in advance.

GORED SKIRT

By ANNE ADAMS

If you were asked what is the youngest, smartest, most becoming type of dress, there'd be just one answer: the shirtwaister! And Anne Adams' Pattern 4309 is full of exciting news. First see the unusual skirt interest. There are no less than ten gores, with two gores at both front and back on the bias. The nice bloused bodice fullness is held in slimly above the waistline with darts. You'll love the crisp cut of the collar with its "dandy" revers so effective in white. Use a wide leather belt or a gay ribbon sash with a matching ribbon bow at the neck. You might like to make bodice and skirt boldly contrasting. Pattern 4309 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 54 inch fabric and 1/2 yard contrast.

Send your order to Appleton Post-Crescent Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

"Does he have to come in, Bunny?" Michael asked plaintively. "Bunny colored faintly. "Something is bothering him."

"What about the pipe I found?" Tuck wanted to know. "I'm not so sure about that," he said slowly. "What would you think, Tuck . . . supposing you—well, supposing you were afraid that I had gone off on a trip with another woman and left you. You had been told that And then, suddenly, someone comes along with my pipe, that I am never without. You know that nothing short of a cataclysm would make me give up my pipe. Yet here, apparently, I have forgotten it. Wouldn't you get something of a jolt just for a minute? Wouldn't you wonder—or, perhaps, wouldn't it hurt just for a moment?"

"Well, perhaps, just a very little," Tuck agreed.

"Womanly Sympathies"
Bunny was looking at Michael shrewdly. "This display of wisdom and general deducing is very effective," she said. "Particularly the last bit of appeal to our womanly sympathies. But before you read your hearts any further, would you mind telling us quite frankly where you get this woman idea?"

Michael sighed. "Life is cruel," he murmured. Then with a gesture of resignation he said, "Well. . . if I must. The Commissioner got a letter."

"A letter?"
"Um."
"Who wrote it?"
"The Missing Professor."

"What?"
"Even so, my children."
"Where is he?"
"He didn't state his present address."

"What made him write to the Commissioner?"
"He didn't write to the Commissioner. To his wife."

"To his wife?"
"Listen, don't say things over after me like that. It makes me dizzy."

"Well, tell us then, Michael! This suspense is awful!"
"He wrote to his wife, and said he was sorry that he didn't love her any longer, and that he had gone away never to return. And

THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT Diamonds
You Plan to Give This Christmas

DIAMONDS and coal are both carbon products. But there the similarity ends. A ton of coal is worth anywhere from five to eighteen dollars. Nobody probably ever estimated the value of a ton of Diamonds. It would doubtless run into the billions, however. How odd that Nature can make two such vastly different products out of the same material!

It is also odd to understand how some folks go about purchasing a Diamond as they would a load of coal. True, even the poorest Diamond ever mined possesses value far out of proportion with other things. Nevertheless, a certain carat-sized Diamond may be worth several hundred dollars, while another thoroughly genuine Diamond of similar carat size may be worth no more than a hundred dollars or so, due to its off-color or other imperfections. The Jeweler alone knows the honest price which each of his Diamonds should bring; and not one customer out of a thousand is qualified to judge or appraise Diamonds.

It is clear that the all-important consideration in the purchase of a Diamond is: "Who stands behind it?" And we might as well be frank and outspoken and admit that every Diamond purchaser is at the mercy of the seller. Hence, do the common-sense thing and buy from a dealer you can trust.

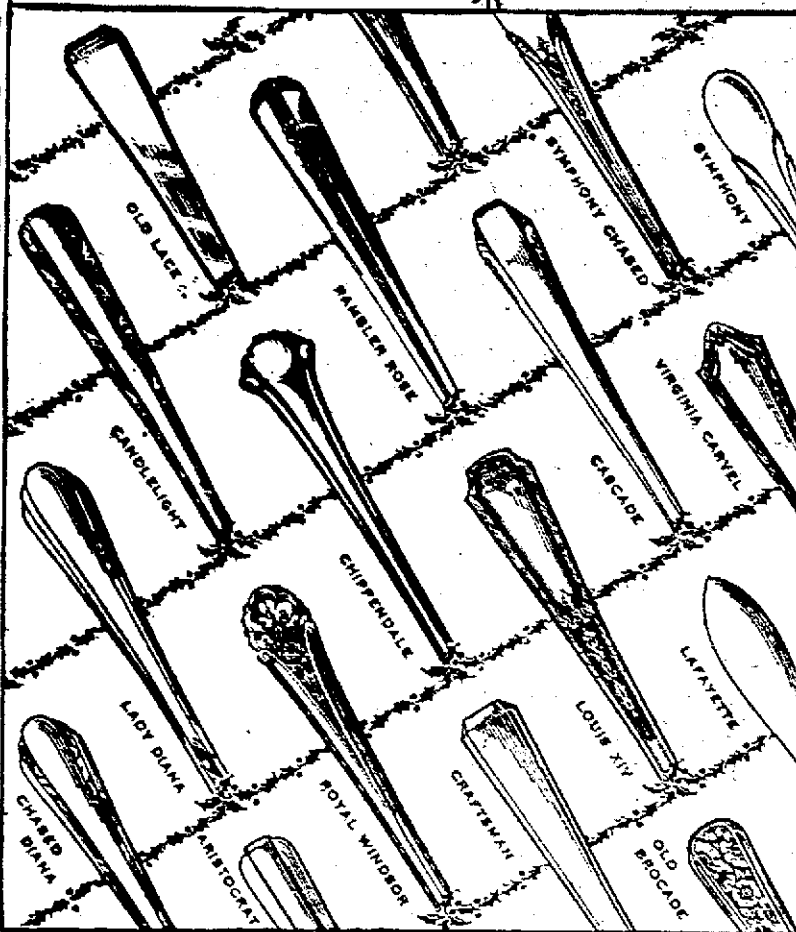

The unvarying fine quality of the Diamonds we sell is the factor which has contributed most to our success. No safer guide could possibly be offered you.

St. Mary's Tips Manitowoc Hi

Sylvester Burghardt, Junior Guard, Is Hero of Victory

BY RANDY HAASE

MANASHA — St. Mary's High school cagers rallied in a wild fourth quarter to defeat Manitowoc 22 to 21 in the first home game of the season Wednesday night. Sylvester Burghardt, junior guard, became the hero of the Zephyrs by throwing in two long shots in the final four minutes to put the Zephyrs ahead.

The game was rough throughout and particularly wild in the last period. The crowd got progressively noisier as time sped until finally it was impossible to hear the officials' whistles. Because of the uproar, part of the crowd started to lean across the floor before the end of the game.

Stechmesser had a chance to tie the score for Manitowoc on Burghardt's fourth foul with five seconds left to go. The ball hit the hoop and bounded away. William Hesch froze into it for the remaining seconds to clinch the victory.

Zephyrs Take Lead

The Zephyrs took a 6 to 5 lead by the end of the first quarter. Johnson, four of the points and Resch added two free throws. Manthe scored both of the Manitowoc baskets on fast breaks from jump ball. In the second quarter Manthe varied the procedure by dropping in two baskets on long set shots over the heads of the defense. His eight points made him high scorer.

Schuller and Johnson dropped baskets for the Zephyrs in the second quarter but the Manasha team trailed at the half 14 to 10. The third quarter got wilder and the fourth the peak for excitement. In the third quarter Resch dropped a shot to tie the Shipbuilders advantage to 13 to 12. Krohn of Manitowoc and Johnson of St. Mary's counted on free throw attempts but Krohn came back with a basket to make it 17 to 13.

Then Resch dropped another shot after numerous Zephyr attempts had gone in, around the edge, and out. Griesbach collected his only goal and the score was tied with over four minutes of the quarter left. There was little basketball played in those minutes as the teams charged up and down the floor but Tadych broke free for a basket shortly before the end of the period to give Manitowoc a 17 to 17 edge.

He got away for another basket at the start of the fourth quarter and to end the Manitowoc scoring and to give the Ships a 21 to 17 edge. Schuller counted once on a free throw, missed on the second and also missed on the third when Manthe stepped over the line too soon on the second shot.

With four minutes to go Burghardt swished a long one and the score was 21 to 20. Manitowoc lost the ball, Burghardt got set on the same spot and sank his second basket with two and one-half minutes left.

Johnson High Scorer

Johnson led the Zephyrs with seven points while Resch followed with six. In the final analysis the game was from the free throw line. The team made eight baskets but the Zephyrs made six of 11 gift attempts while Manitowoc missed on seven out of 12. The Zephyrs got their 11 attempts on seven Manitowoc fouls while the St. Mary's team was charged with 10 miscues.

In spite of the pace of the game, there were relatively few substitutions. The Zephyrs used six men because Burghardt collected too many personals and Manitowoc used seven players.

Sheboygan Redskins

Defeat Hammond Five

SHEBOYGAN — The Sheboygan Redskins battled off a late rally to emerge with a 35 to 32 victory over Hammond in a National Professional Basketball league contest here last night.

The Redskins held a 17-13 lead at the half and increased it to 30-21 at the end of the third quarter before Hammond's final spurt whittled down the margin.

Association May End 1940 Season Earlier

COLUMBUS, O., (AP)—The question of closing the 1940 American association baseball season ahead of the already-agreed date of Sept. 15 was studied today as schedule-makers met here to draft next year's program.

The meeting was a prelude to the annual convention of front-office representatives of the league's eight clubs, who open their 39th session tomorrow.

The 1940 season will open April 18, but in view of the recent action of the International league in fixing Sept. 8 for its finale, the association match-makers considered doing away with the already-set Sept. 15.

"Moe Berg was offered the chair of romantic languages at Princeton, his alma mater. He refused it, not because there wasn't enough money in it, but because he felt the post would be too confining, and Moe likes to get around."

High ranking baseball officials brought so much pressure to bear that his bishop has just about decided to permit Father Harold J. Martin to continue as president of the Canadian-American league. That's the best news of the hot stove league season.

Lloyd Madden Gets Final Chance to Set Scoring Mark

BY LOUDON KELLY

OLDEN, Colo., (AP)—Lloyd Madden, a strapping, bashful blond youth who takes his classroom work like his football—seriously—has turned the attention of football fans all over the nation upon himself and his school.

A Kansas boy who came out to the mile-high country to get an engineering education at the Colorado School of Mines, he is the leading scorer among all the thousands of collegians playing football in the United States.

In seven games through Nov. 18, Halfback Madden had rattled off 117 points for the undefeated, untied Miners, to take a three-point lead over Don Lieberman of Manchester, Ind. Teachers. The team's last game is with Regis college of Denver, Nov. 30.

The 22-year-old Kansan weighs 185 and has the thick legs of a line-smashing fullback, yet he has scampered the 100-yard dash in 19 seconds for the Mines track team. Most of his 19 touchdowns have been scored on reverse plays in runs ranging up to 68 yards.

"Blockers Don't It"

"I hope people won't think I take the credit for my scoring," Madden said earnestly. "The rest of the boys are responsible for most of it. They want me to score and they really block for me."

Like all the players on Mines' Rocky Mountain conference championship team, Madden works at least seven hours a day and sometimes eight in classroom and laboratory. He intends to be a petroleum geologist.

He admitted his school work "gets a little better each semester. I had an 87 average last semester" and 87 is "exceptionally high" at Mines.

Would Beat Whizzer

Lopin' Lloyd wants more than anything else to beat Whizzer White. While led the nation's scorers with 122 points two years ago when he was an all-American back at Colorado university, Madden needs only one more touchdown to pass the Whizzer's mark.

The high point of Madden's season was on Nov. 11 when he scored 33 points in helping Mines beat Western State, 71 to 7, to win its title in 21 years. In seven games Lloyd has gained 1,157 yards, more in scrimmage runs, pass catches and kickoff returns.

He played one year at Peabody Kas. high school and two years at Manhattan, Kas. where he was an all-Eastern Kansas conference halfback.

Mines, in winning seven straight, is the highest-scoring team in the mountain country, scoring 230 points, nearly 38 per game, to 36 for its opponents. This is Coach Johnny Mason's third year at the helm.

Beloit Prepares For Armour Tech

GOLD SHOWS FLASHES OF Scoring Ability and All Kinds of Power

Beloit — With the threat of their season opener against Armour Tech, Dec. 2, hanging over them, the Beloit college cagers are redoubling their efforts to develop a winning team.

Slowed considerably in order to give everyone a chance at each position in the various combinations, the squad has shown intermittent flashes of power and scoring ability. According to Coach Louis E. Means, the varsity teams have been dealing roughly with an unusually strong frosh quintet.

Means has spent the past week concentrating on creating a strong offense and developing the timing of rebounds. Reports from daily practice sessions indicate that the squad has shown more than the team's defensive work and especially their footwork and ball attentiveness.

The team is in fine physical shape except for the minor injuries suffered by veteran guard, Fred Hoegberg, and the classy newcomer at forward, Will Harmon.

With six of last year's lettermen a nucleus and three minor lettermen besides the Armour Tech squad is reported to be one of the finest in years. However, handicapped by several pre-season injuries, Coach Stenger may be forced to use some second string men.

The schedule this year with eight home games and eight away is one of the toughest in years. With the exception of time out for examinations there is a game a week from Dec. 2 until March 1.

Sportsman's Park Is Refused Racing Dates

CHICAGO — Five Chicago tracks have been allotted racing dates for 1940 but Sportsman's park was not among them.

The Illinois Racing association's refusal to assign dates for Sportsman's park yesterday was the outgrowth of the gangster-like assassination of Edward J. O'Hare, president of the National Jockey club which operates the track.

The association based its decision on a law which requires applicants to furnish full information on stock ownership and identify financial integrity and moral responsibility of all officials.

The commission ruled that inasmuch as O'Hare's death occurred after application for dates had been filed, naming of a successor was a necessary step before it could determine whether the club was qualified to operate a race meeting.

It added, however, that "if and when the National Jockey club files an amended or new application for racing dates, supplying the necessary information," hearing would be granted.

LLOYD MADDEN 117 points in 7 games.

Kotz Stars, but Frosh Lose, 30-24

Badger Varsity Is Victor In Basketball Game With Yearlings

Madison — (AP)—A sharp battle for individual scoring honors, between Gene Englund, veteran center, and John Kotz, frosh pivot, developed last night as the University of Wisconsin varsity defeated the freshmen cagers 30 to 24.

Englund paced the varsity in its first public game of the season with three field goals and four free throws for a total of 10 points. Kotz scored nine points on three goals and three gift shots.

Andy Smith and Bob Schwartz, varsity forwards, supported Englund's drive to victory with six points each. Runners-up in the frosh scoring were Ray Lenheiser and Robert Sullivan, forwards, and Leonard Vogel, guard, who had four point totals.

Englund's home is in Kenosha. Kotz and Lenheiser were outstanding on Rhinelander's 1938 championship high school team. Smith is of Wausau; Schwartz of Madison; Sullivan of Ojibwa, and Vogel of Milwaukee.

The freshmen, with a squad of sharpshooters, has pushed the varsity throughout the training season. The Badger varsity was ragged in spots last night, missing numerous set up shots, but built up a 21 to 10 halftime lead and stayed in front to the end.

The game was delayed about a half hour shortly after the second half started when field house lights went out because of a citywide power failure.

The varsity will meet Carleton college, of Northfield, Minn., in its first intercollegiate test here Monday night.

Van Caster followed with a 544 series, to lead the Denmark Beers to a 2-9 record over Adler Brau. For the losers, F. Yelg hit 203 and 559.

Jansen rolled one game of 210, but his Mellow Brew team dropped two games to Miller High Life. For the winners, Strutz had 521. L. Schroeder had 207 and J. Moll 212 and 557 as Century club won two from Stark's hotel. For the losers, Reck had 540.

Karl Ogren Cleared By Fight Commission

MILWAUKEE — (AP)—Chairman Ray Sheehy of the state athletic commission announced last night Karl Ogren of Stone Lake, Wis., had been cleared of charges of permitting four boxers under his management to face each other in bouts at Eau Claire.

Sheehy said Ogren admitted advertising in a boxing magazine that the boys were under his management, but told the commission that actually he did not manage all of the fighters or even obtain bookings for them.

Ogren, a former boxer, runs a training camp at Stone Lake.

Milwaukee — Statisticians of the National Professional Football league erred recently when they announced a new record for place-kicking in a single game in that circuit. The record, four goals, was set by Paddy Driscoll, present Marquette university coach, when his Cardinals defeated Columbus, 19-9, in 1925.

Wet Fields, Rain Expected to Hurt Today's Grid Tilts

Tennessee - Kentucky and Texas - Texas Aggies Contests are Tops

BY JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK — (AP)—The dinner bell is ringing for the second table of the Thanksgiving day football feast and the fans who waited are getting something more than the bones of the first gridiron turkey.

It wasn't a fat offering that was left for approximately half the country celebrating today as a holiday, but the portion included juicy cuts such as the Tennessee-Kentucky and Texas Aggies-Texas sizzlers.

The attention of football fans generally and a couple of bowl committees in particular centered on these contests because Tennessee and the Aggies, undefeated and untied, were rated pretty close to the summit of the gridiron grade and likely chances for some New Year's day public appearances.

Whether the teams are up or down, there aren't any football feuds hotter than the Tennessee-Kentucky dispute over a battered old beer keg. And with Cafego and some of his fellow Volunteers reportedly ailing, the best Kentucky team in years may give Tennessee a tussle.

The Texas Longhorns chances against the Aggies, on the other hand, weren't any brighter than the rainy weather forecast for the game. Their rivalry was fully as fierce, and dated back to 1894, but wet grounds added just so much advantage to the heavier and more experienced Aggies.

Rutgers vs. Brown

There were other fancy trays on the menu for lusty sectional appetites today, too. In the east, for instance, undefeated Rutgers will collide with a bigger and possibly stronger eleven from Brown University.

In the south, once-beaten and tied North Carolina bumps into Virginia's gentlemanly Cavaliers and rounding out a whopping southern show, Auburn met Florida. Alabama tackled Vanderbilt, Davidson played Wake Forest and Loyola met Texas Tech.

The southwest had Arkansas and Tulsa in a supporting role to the big spectacle.

The piece de resistance for the Rocky Mountains paired Colorado and Denver in another historic meeting with Colorado State scrapping against New Mexico as a side course.

And out on the Pacific coast one of the mightiest of the small schools, San Jose State, was wrapped in an inter-sectional package with Drake. Washington State will engage the University of California at Los Angeles in a night game.

Shawano, W. DePere Will Open League Play

SHAWANO — The Shawano Indians will be ringing up the curtain on another season in the western division of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference here Friday night, when the Black Phantoms of West De Pere invade the city for a game at the local school gymnasium.

The teams traded home dates because of repairs at the West De Pere gym.

For five consecutive years the Indians have ruled the roost in the western division, entirely unchallenged until last year, when Neenah tied them for the crown. Competition around the loop threatens to be tough this year, however, and the 1939-40 edition of the Maroon and Black could use a lot more unified play on the court.

To date Coach Cliff Dilts' squad has won non-conference games against Green Bay East and Marion, giving up only 25 points in the process, but the offensive play of the quintet leaves a lot to be desired.

For the next two weeks his arm will be put to daily hot water treatments, after that—the hope process, until he tests it out in spring training.

Calumet County Deer Hunters Have Success

Chilton—Of the 350 hunters who obtained tags in Calumet county, a few have returned home with favorable results. The majority, however, have remained in the north woods. Some still have their game to bag and others because of the perfect camping weather. F. F. Schlosser, Superintendent of Chilton schools and Paul Krueger, high school coach, were the first Chiltonites to arrive home, each with a buck on Sunday evening. Mike Boltz and George Goggins, also in their party, remained up north. Boltz already had his game but Goggins was still hunting for his. Ted Stuebel returned home Monday night with a buck from near Winchester. In his party were Dr. Harry Flaherty of Milwaukee, Dr. John Minahan, Chilton, Lloyd Johnson of South Milwaukee and Harry Flaherty of Rantoul.

Mrs. J. J. Grimm, wife of the county treasurer, received word from her daughter in the north woods, Mrs. Clarence Zarnoth, that she and her husband already had their buck. They are on their wedding trip in the north. Other members in their party are Miss Helen Broker of Chilton, Reuben Guenther of Hayton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hildebrandt and Reuben Kuel of New Holstein.

HUNTER BAGS ALBINO DEER

Bert Pepowski of the town of Bevent, Marathon county, Wis., is pictured with the albino deer he shot while hunting along the Manitowish river in Vilas county. The buck weighed 130 pounds. Conservation officials expressed interest, saying they previously had thought the only albino deer in the state was the one in a pen at the state game farm at Foyette.

Tom Harmon Was Leading Ground Gainer in Nation

BY GAIL FOWLER

SEATTLE, (AP)—Tom Harmon, Michigan's great back who rolled up 221 yards last week, ranked first as the nation's leading ground gainer today, and also held the distinction of surpassing the 1938 rushing leader.

American Football Statistical Bureau figures showed Harmon totaled 1,356 yards from both passes and scrimmage for an average of 169.5 yards per game and 608 yards per play.

In eight games, he carried the ball 129 times and threw it 94 times, gaining 888 yards on the ground and 488 in the air. His ground gain passed the 1938 leader, Len Eshmont of Fordham, who totaled 831.

After trailing Kay Eakin, the Arkansas traveler, for two weeks, Harmon zoomed into first place while Eakin was idle. Eakin has accounted for 1,150 yards in nine games.

Kenny Washington of U. C. L. A. moved up from sixth to third with 1,107 yards in eight games. Others in the top 10, with the number of games played and total net yardage: Other Leaders

Johnny Kneller, eight games and 1,104 yards; Paul Christman, Missouri, nine and 1,095; Junie Plunkett, Vanderbilt, nine and 1,090; Nile Kinnick, Iowa, eight and 998; Harold Van Every, Minnesota, eight and 994; Granny Lansdell, Southern California, seven and 981; Jim "Sweet" Lallande, North Carolina, nine and 931, although records on his tenth game are yet unavailable.

Harmon is miles ahead as the nation's best rusher. His average per game is 108.5 on the ground, or 185 yards better than his nearest competitor, Kneller.

Eakin still leads the passers with 63 completions of 167 attempts. He is followed by Christman of Missouri with 63 completions; Plunkett, Vanderbilt, 60; Hal Hursh, Indiana, 57; Graham Edwards, the Citadel, 52; Rusty Cowart, Texas Christian, 51; Ernie Lain, Rice, 50; Lallande, North Carolina, 45; Marion Pugh, Texas A. and M., 40; and Ed Boell, New York U., 37.

Bob David of The Citadel is the leading pass snatcher with 27. Don Looney, T. C. U., was second with 25 and Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State, third with 23.

PACED BIG TEN
Chicago—(AP)—Tom Harmon, Michigan's backfield ace, wound up as the No. 1 offensive man of the Big Ten statistics for the 1939 conference football season disclosed today. ## Tuffy Leemans May be Ready for Sunday's Tilt

New York—(AP)—Dr. Francis Sweeney lanced an infection yesterday on the left leg of Tuffy Leemans, New York Giants Professional football star, and indicated there was still a chance he might be able to play Sunday against the Washington Redskins. The game will determine the eastern division title of the National Pro Football league.

59.1 yards and a game average of 118.4. Nile Kinnick of Iowa achieved the next best average at 90.6, followed by Harmon with 78.8.

Kinnick, by virtue of his 544 yards gained by passing, also was runner-up in the combined rushing and passing department with an average of 127.8 yards a game. Hursh, in third place, had 117.8.

Harold Van Every of Minnesota, while second to Harmon in average gains a game by rushing, rolled up the most yardage for the season in this manner—452.3 in six games. Harmon was second at 444 and George Pasckvan of Wisconsin third with 429.

Jimmy Strausbaugh, climax runner of the champion Ohio State Buckeyes, had the best rushing average per play—337 yards. Northwestern's Paul Soper followed with seven per try.

Among the cities which Alexander wanted to capture was one named Tyre. It was the capital of ancient Phoenicia.

Tyre was important because of its fleet. Alexander believed that if he captured the city, he would obtain its war galleys, and would be able to use them in an attack on Egypt.

Located on a little island about three-quarters of a mile from the mainland, Tyre was not an easy place to capture. Since Alexander had few ships of his own, he had to find some other way of getting there with his army.

A bold idea came to him. Why not build a causeway to the island! Fortunately for him, the water was shallow. He set thousands of his men to work, and even labored with his own hands.

Weeks and months passed, and the causeway grew longer and longer. Stones, tree trunks and soil were used in building it.

From time to time, war galleys from Tyre were rowed toward the causeway, and showers of arrows were shot at the workers. To save his men, Alexander ordered large wooden screens to be set up, and to be moved forward as the causeway grew.

After several months of work, the causeway was built to a point a few hundred feet from the edge of the island. Using catapults, behind the great wall of their city, the Tyrians hurled hot sand at the enemy. The sand came in clouds and almost blinded those who were struck by it. We may compare the hot sand to poison gas in modern warfare.

Large wooden towers were built by Alexander's men, and were made ready with battering rams to be used against the city wall.

From time to time, the towers were set afire by fire-darts, but Alexander's men worked hard to put out each blaze. The towers were shoved closer and closer.

Meanwhile a number of war galleys had been obtained by Alexander from the island of Cyprus and from certain cities to the north which had decided to accept his rule. The galleys proved helpful in the siege.

A breach was at last made in the city wall, and Alexander's forces pushed through it. Their leader was in the thick of the battle. There were persons who said he had a "charmed life." Often he went into battle, and sometimes he was wounded, but each time he escaped with his life.

Tyre fell into his hands, and 30,000 of the people were sold into slavery.

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Wees

she took the letter to the Commissioner.

"Oh, she did, did she?"

"Yes, verily."

"Michael Forester, I bet you're still trying to play hide and seek with us. Was it in his very own handwriting?"

"I was."

"Dated?"

"Dated—six weeks after he left."

Tuck stared at him in silence for a long minute. Then, "Michael—was it in the envelope?"

"It was."

"And the postmark?"

"The postmark? On...," Michael grinned at her suspense. "Perfectly straight and correct, my love. Chicago. And kindly don't make any remarks about machine guns or gangsters, Bunny," he finished

sternly as he saw a remark trembling on her lips.

Bunny frowned. "Chicago?" Chicago, Michael?"

"Yes."

Tuck sank back into the couch.

"Isn't that simply awful," she said

miserably. "It's just like a balloon with a pin stuck in it," she reflect-

ed. "It can't be in his own handwriting," she said.

The District Attorney looked at her. "It's in his own handwriting."

"Is that certain?"

"As certain as the best expert we know can make it."

Tuck sighed. "We're sort of stopped, aren't we? Although...

you can't tell me that all this sneaking around and crawling into people's houses and hanging pots

and pans on people's doors and getting the pots and pans away again before anybody can get a look at them, and turning pale and holding their breaths is imagination. I refuse to believe it. There's something in the woodpile."

Michael still paced the floor.

"There's many a good man," said the District Attorney to the gas-log, "hung on circumstantial evidence."

Asks Attorney General To Halt Fund Diversion

Madison — (P)—Deputy Attorney General J. Ward Rector said Wednesday a formal request to prevent alleged diversion of highway funds had been submitted to the attorney general.

He said a letter from Attorney Joseph E. Tierney, Milwaukee, representing Herman Friedrich, Oshkosh contractor, would be brought to Attorney General John E. Martin's attention when he returned to the office, probably tomorrow.

Tierney asked immediate action to prevent Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman and Treasurer John M. Smith from "permitting further diversion of automobile registration fees, operator's licenses and motor vehicle fuel taxes."

Zimmerman and Smith audit vouchers for release of such funds. The revenues listed by Tierney are earmarked for highway use.

Former Resident of Forest Junction to Go to South America

Forest Junction — Elmer B. Ott, formerly of Forest Junction, now of Madison, where he is vice president of the Ray-O-Vac company, is leaving on Thursday for a trip to Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay and the Argentine in South America, where he will investigate the possibilities of the continent as a field for new business. The trip also will be a vacation and Mr. Ott will be accompanied by his wife and 5-year-old daughter, Nancy. A 14-day ocean voyage between New York and Rio de Janeiro will inaugurate the trip.

A farewell dinner was given the family at the Retlaw hotel at Fond du Lac last Sunday noon, which was attended by Mr. Ott's father from here, Albert Ott, and a sister, Miss Mattie Ott, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hacker, and daughter Mary Ann.

Vacate Homestead
The 79-acre farm a little more than a mile north of Forest Junction, where the late Carl Schubring and his family, German immigrants, settled in a forest wilderness purchased for $450 per acre in 1866, was vacated this week by the family of Elmer Schubring, grandson of the original settler, who moved to Kaukauna. The farm has been purchased by John Keller, neighboring landowner, terminating the 73-year occupation of the place by the Schubring family. The removal this week, accomplished with motor vehicles, was a striking contrast to the arrival in 1866 with a $227 ox team purchased in Waukesha, where the family had lived 5 years after coming to America.

Miss Helen Nimtz, Chilton, who, during the past year, has succeeded Miss Faythe Fletcher as supervising teacher of Calumet county, has been engaged to address the next monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher association at McKinley school Tuesday evening, Dec. 12.

November is the month of East Texas' heaviest loss from forest fires.

BLONDIE PICTURE AT ELITE
Dagwood says "Thumbs Up!" and that's just what the Bumstead family does in this scene from their newest Columbia comedy, "Blondie Takes a Vacation," now at the Elite Theatre. Reading from right to left, because the funny-paper family of Chic Young's comic strip always does things backwards, we find Penny Singleton as "Blondie," Arthur Lake as "Dagwood," "Daisy," and Larry Simms as "Baby Dumpling."

Give Real Thanks, Clergyman Urges

Americans Should Think Of Their Privileges, Rotarians Told

Kaukauna — A plea to make Thanksgiving a real day of thanks, and not merely an occasion for feasting, was made before Rotarians yesterday noon at Hotel Kaukauna by the Rev. L. F. Green, pastor of St. Wrook Memorial Methodist church.

"Americans have many privileges that we do not stop to think about," the Rev. Mr. Green stated. "We should give thanks for such privileges as life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, which in European countries do not exist."

"In this modern world we live too fast to stop and give thanks, to be really appreciative of what we have. Our rapid pace is the fault of the age rather than the individual. Let us remember that few worthwhile things are done quickly."

Only after privileges have been lost do most people see their value, the speaker brought out, concluding by asking that on Thanksgiving day Americans ponder the heritage which makes them a nation apart.

Mellow Brew Cagers Defeated at Hilbert

Chilton Students Take Part in Discussions

Chilton — Open discussions followed by round table talks are taking the place of the formal debate in Chilton High school this year. El-Is Evans is at the head of the project which he hopes will develop into a sort of "speaker's bureau" or public forum. The first discussion was held before the assembly Tuesday, the subject being "What contributions were made by different nationalities in the United States?"

Four students, each representing a different nationality, gave a talk on its contributions, after which Evans presided at a round table discussion. The following students took part: Virginia Greuel, on the French contributions; Eileen Lessel-yong, the German; John Murphy, the British Isles; and Elder Gilbertson, the Scandinavian.

Chief Whitefeather, Indian chief of the Chippewa tribe of Hayward, Wis., gave an interesting program before the pupils of the Chilton schools gathered in the high school auditorium Wednesday morning. Chief Whitefeather, a college graduate, told stories of his tribe, gave the Indian signs and demonstrated the Indian dances.

Ten aspirants for the position of janitor for the new Chilton postoffice took the civil service tests and examinations at the Chilton city hall Wednesday morning, Nov. 29. Raymond Millay, Chilton, had charge.

Bear Creek Students Present 3-Act Play

Grace Jasper, Virginia Dempsey; Noia Miller, Valda Sahr; Miranda Jasper, Jean Leag; Jane Jasper, Marian Flanagan; Toby Sumptins, Gerald Lorge; Jason Gouch, Dan Flannery; Douglas Smith, David Flanagan; Crystal Cluett, Sally Hurley; Ollie Dinkleybury, Lucille Moriarity; Schuyler Pell, Donald Reinke; Marion Marsh, Marjorie Bates. It was directed by Miss Margaret Dixon.

The play was preceded by a band concert directed by Harold Jansen of Little Chute.

Bear Creek High school closed for the Thanksgiving vacation Wednesday. The following teachers will spend the weekend at their homes: Principal S. B. Helms at Marton, Ralph J. Ott at Milwaukee, Miss Margaret Dixon at Proctor, Minnesota.

Edwin Reinke was one of the lucky hunters returning from the north with a deer Tuesday.

Artificial Insemination, Geiger will discuss recent developments and the progress which these new signs of breeding is making in the different sections of the United States.

Holsteins to be Topic Of Meeting at Chilton

Chilton — Bob Geiger, fieldman for the Holstein-Friesian association of America, will discuss holsteins with the Calumet county farmers at the annual holstein meeting which will be held in Chilton city hall Monday evening, Dec. 4. Geiger will illustrate his remarks with motion pictures taken of holstein activities in the various parts of the middle western states.

There will be a movie pertaining to "Another plan? I've given you five military secrets already, Nadya—what in the world do you do with them?"

Reappearance of Publication Marks New Prohibition Drive

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Because it is always darkest before the dawn, the state prohibition organization has chosen November of 1939 to begin a new campaign to chase the demon rum out of Wisconsin. William C. Dean, for several decades leader of a temperance movement which until a few years ago had the status of a full-fledged political party, has announced.

With the resumption of publication of the Forward Press, prohibition organ, Dean announces that he and a few of his faithful co-workers are beginning a new drive to achieve what is "the one present pressing need," "to rid our nation of the incubus of alcoholic intoxicants."

"Now is the time for conscientious citizens to rise," says a brochure distributed from Madison headquarters, "unite and crush this monstrous evil."

Was Prominent Figure
Members of the generation under 30 probably will not remember Dean, prominent figure of a political cycle which ended with the repeal of what has been known as "The Noble Experiment."

One of Dean's present associates was also active in his earlier work. He is the Rev. E. L. Cady, former Oshkosh mission worker and present head of the Wisconsin Grand Lodge of Good Templars.

Cady and Dean lost the printing plant which formerly produced their literary ammunition in 1936, but they have reestablished their newspaper, replete with fervent references to "this monstrous evil," "this devil's brew," and reminiscent of the earlier temperance sheets which fought liquor traffic before 1918.

Unfavorable Prospects
The two have withdrawn from work in the formal prohibition organization, known as the Temperance Education association, in the belief, they explain, that they can operate more effectively in the field of politics. A temperance party will have more effect there, they hope.

Both admit that prospects now aren't favorable, but says Dean in his paper:

"On the face of it, the present situation regarding the liquor traffic, especially in Wisconsin, seems mighty discouraging for the dries. Never have anti-liquor efforts met with so little success. Never has anti-liquor legislation received less favor from the state legislature. But there is a slow tide of public sentiment already faintly discernible, Dean is confident, which will rise against "this demoralizing indulgence, this destructive traffic."

RECEIVES CHECK
Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county treasurer, has received a check for $6,301.46 from the state pension department. The sum is the October allotment of state-federal aid for dependent children.

2,652 Parents are Visitors at Schools During Education Week

Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, expressed satisfaction today with the results of the American Education week program in Appleton schools.

He said that visits to public schools by parents of pupils resulted in more than 2,000 parent teacher conferences during which the parents and teachers exchanged views on the child under discussion.

During education week, Nov. 6 to 11, a total of 1,488 parents visited kindergartens and grade schools, 754 visited the junior high schools and 410 parents were visitors at the senior high school.

Rohan said that both teachers and parents got much information out of the conferences and that the information will benefit both in their appreciation of the child's problems.
